DECRY TARIFF CHANGE

The Republican members of the Legislative Committee on Federal Relations, constituting a majority, today reported a resolution urging that any tariff legislation undertaken by Congress be based on the protective principle.

The resolution fails to indorse reciprocity, although it is based upon Governor Foss' special tariff message, advocating the establishment of reciprocal trade agreements with other countries.

The Resolution.

The committee's resolution follows:

"To the Honorable Senate and House in Congress of the United States:

"The Legislature of Massachusetts hereby respectfully submits for your consideration the following memorial:

"On April 3, 1913, His Excellency Eugene N. Foss, Governor of Massachusetts, recommended in a message of that date that the Legislature address the Congress of the United States with reference to the tariff legislation now pending.

"In conformity with this recommendation of His Excellency the Governor, we, the Legislature of Massachusetts, do now respectfully submit to your honorable bodies the following considerations in regard to tariff legislation.

"With many of the arguments and conclusions presented by His Excellency the Governor in his message hereto appended, we are not in accord, but we are in full agreement with him as to the importance of the subject, representing as we do a State conspicuous both for its extent and the variety of its industries, many of which are gravely affected by the tariff laws of the United States.

"We would, at the outset, respectfully call attention to the following statement in the message of His Excellency the Governor:

Quotes Foss Message.

The concrete political expression of the popular demand appears in the election of a Democratic President and a Democratic Congress; but the two platforms which indorsed the principle of protection received in the votes for the candidates who stood upon them a greater indorsement by the American people at the last election than the platform which represented the principle of a protective tariff.

"That a large majority of the voters of the United States cast their votes in favor of maintaining the protective principle in tariff legislation there can be, we believe, no doubt. The voters of the United States have given no mandate to Congress in favor of tariff legislation based on free trade principles.

"The policy of opening the markets of the United States to the unrestricted competition of the rest of the world, advocated by the President in his message and the pending bill, which is a long step toward the complete establishment of that policy, appears to us to be in direct contravention of the wishes of the voters of the United States and especially of this commonwealth as expressed in the last election.

Reasonable Protection.

"We would therefore respectfully urge that any tariff legislation undertaken by Congress be based on the protective principle.

"We are of opinion that there should be a reasonable protection accorded to all industries sufficient to maintain American wages and American standards of living and to prevent the necessity of reductions either in the rates of wages or in the total amount of the wage fund paid out.

"We are of the opinion that a tariff commission of disinterested experts such as we have had in the past should be re-established to order that tariff changes may be scientifically made and not be the work of partisan committees irregularly modified by local and sectional interests.

"We believe that the maximum and minimum provisions should be continued because in this way alone, we can secure equal treatment in the markets of the world and protect ourselves against unjust discriminations.

Want Free Raw Materials.

"We are of opinion that raw materials of any industry which never have been and cannot be produced in the United States should be admitted free of duty, and we especially urge upon Congress the importance of maintaining a proportionate difference in rates between raw materials which bear a duty and the finished product, into which such raw materials are converted.

SNAPSHOT of Mrs. James J. Phelan, formerly Miss Mabel J. McGaffee, as she was leaving Cardinal O'Connell's residence following her marriage to Boston banker today in the cardinal's private chapel.

Mrs. Phelan Made a Very Pretty Bride. The Only Jewelry She Wore Was a Diamond Pendant, a Gift From the Groom. She Is a Graduate of Notre Dame Convent in Roxbury.

Cardinal O'Connell performed the marriage in the private chapel at the archiepiscopal residence on Greenry street, Back Bay, today of Miss Mabel Josephine McGaffee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. McGaffee, and James J. Phelan of Boston and Brookline, broker and member of the Clover and Algonquin clubs.

The ceremony and the wedding breakfast following were attended only by relatives of the bride and bridegroom, not over a score being in the bridal party.

The wedding took place at 9 o'clock. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss May McGaffee, as maid of honor. Joseph A. Donnison, former Assistant District Attorney for Suffolk County, was best man.

The bride wore white charmeuse, with pearl trimming. Her gown was made with a long train. The bodice and panniers were of rare Carrickmacross lace. The tulle veil was gathered about her head with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her sole jewelry was a diamond pendant, the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss May McGaffee, the maid of honor, was gowned in soft moire of blush pink. The bodice of her gown was ornamented with pearl trimming and with a broad bow of blue ribbon. She wore a pole bonnet trimmed with the blue ribbon and with pink moire. Upon her arm she carried a legborn basket, which was hung from a broad blue ribbon and was filled with pale Killarney roses.

From the chapel the bridal party went to the home of the bride's parents at No. 383 South Huntington avenue, where the wedding breakfast was served. The house was decorated with lilies, palms and bride's roses. The bride's table in the breakfast room was adorned with white orchids and lilies.

The bridal couple started West for a honeymoon on the Pacific coast. They will return to Boston in mid-June for a Summer at the North Shore. After November 1 they will be at home at No. 11 Chiswick road, Brookline.

ATTENDANT WHO BEAT PATIENT IS JAILED A YEAR

William A. Prock, attendant at the Pierce Farm, was sent to jail today for one year for kicking and striking Michael Maloney, an insane and feeble inmate of the farm, whom Prock was bathing while under the influence of liquor.

Prock, who was arrested at the North Station just as he was leaving for Waldoboro, Me., testified that he acted in self-defence. He denied he had been drinking, in the face of testimony to the contrary.

Judge Perrins said, in the course of a severe talk to Prock, that "it is absolutely inexcusable for anyone to lose his temper over one of these poor, unfortunate, irresponsible, insane persons." Then the judge gave Prock the limit of the law in an assault and battery case. Prock took no appeal.

Two attendants testified that Prock had been drinking. Prock came on duty last Monday at 12 o'clock. The assault on Maloney occurred at 3:30.

HARVARD TO PROBE SHOOTING

The mystery of the strange death of James B. Tennant, college graduate and student at the Harvard School of Business Administration, who was found dead from a bullet at a tower of the West Boston bridge, deepened today when word was received from the young man's father that he believes that his son was murdered.

R. S. Tennant, the father, who lives in Terre Haute, Indiana, has sent his younger son to Cambridge, and has wired the Harvard authorities asking them to investigate the death of his son.

The father declares that his son had no love affairs, and that he had no cause for suicide.

Search was made today for any letters that the young man may have left, but none were found. He roomed in the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. dormitories, but his roommates can throw no light on his actions.

The body was found a little after 8 o'clock by the drawtender and reported to the policeman on the beat. The police theory is that Tennant stood in the doorway of Tower D, facing the Charles River, and that he fired the shot into his temple.

Medical Examiner Magrath declared there is no question but what Tennant committed suicide.

"There is no reason for suspecting murder," said the medical examiner. "It was shown that Tennant was found with a revolver in his right hand, the right arm being under his prostrate body. There was a bullet wound in the right temple, and the right hand between the thumb and forefinger was smeared with blood. His glasses were broken in his fall.

"I talked with his roommates, and, whatever was the reason for the act, it was not due to a love affair."

BRYAN TO HELP ON JAP LAW

WASHINGTON, April 23.—President Wilson, alarmed at the developments in the California Japanese situation, today wired to Governor Johnson and the Legislature of California to inquire if it would be agreeable to them to have Secretary of State Bryan visit Sacramento to co-operate with the California authorities in the framing of an alien land bill which will not trespass upon the treaty obligations of the United States.

The President's message to Johnson read:

Thank you for your patriotic telegram. We find it so difficult from this distance to understand fully the situation with regard to the sentiments and circumstances lying back of the pending proposition concerning the ownership of land in the State that I venture to inquire whether it would be agreeable to you and the Legislature to have the Secretary of State visit Sacramento for the purpose of counseling with you and the members of the Legislature and co-operating with you and them in the framing of a law which would meet with the views of the State and yet leave untouched the international obligations of the United States.

WOODROW WILSON.

The same telegram, with the exception of the opening sentence, was sent to the president of the Senate and the speaker of the Assembly of California.

Cassidy's "Rotten Egg" Bill Reported by Full Committee

By unanimous vote, the Legislative Committee on Public Health today favorably reported the bill authored by Harry P. Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S pure food expert, to prohibit the sale and use of eggs unfit for food.

A heavy penalty is provided in the bill for violation of the act.

This is the biggest development to date in Cassidy's fight against the marketing of rotten eggs in Massachusetts. The bill was introduced by Representative John F. McCarthy of Ward 16, Boston.

A number of dealers are now under indictment in Suffolk County for selling eggs unfit for food purposes, to bakeries.

Foss Removes State Sealer for "Irregularities"

Daniel C. Palmer, State Sealer of Weights and Measures for over twenty years, was summarily removed from office today by Governor Foss, with the approval of the Executive Council, for "irregularities in his personal expense accounts."

Mr. Palmer is a Republican and one of the veteran State office-holders. About five years ago a particularly active crusade against short weights and measures was instituted throughout the State. The sealer's deputies were instructed to make all wholesalers and retailers live up to the letter of the law.

A great deal of opposition to Mr. Palmer is said to have had its inception from that crusade.

Rich Merchant Gets Jail For Threat to Girl

Maine Central Accounts Juggled.

Mr. Brandeis brought out in his cross-examination of Mr. Hobbs the following facts:

That the indebtedness of the Maine Central has increased $20,000,000 since the New Haven acquired control.

That the New Haven juggled the accounts of the Maine Central as it did other subsidiary companies.

That the Portland Terminal Company was organized out of whole cloth to control transportation in Maine.

That the Portland Terminal Company was capitalized at a million dollars.

That it issued bonds of $4,750,000 at par value, $100.

That these bonds were sold to J. P. Morgan & Co. at $88, allowing Mr. Morgan a profit of $570,000.

That the New Haven, through the Maine Central, paid the Ricker Hotel Company approximately $1,600,000 for its hotel property and assumed an additional indebtedness of the company amounting to about $1,-000,000. Mr. Ricker of the company was a director of the Boston & Maine at the time.

Mr. Prouty examined Mr. Hobbs on the formation of the Portland Terminal Company owned by the Maine Central Railroad.

Q. (by Judge Prouty.)—What is the Portland Terminal Company? A.—It is a company formed to handle the business at the Portland Terminal formerly handled by different railroads.

Q.—Is it a subsidiary company to the Maine Central and the Boston & Maine? A.—In a sense, yes.

Q.—How was it formed? A.—Property of the Maine Central Railroad valued at $1,500,000 and Boston & Maine holdings of $2,300,000 was turned over to this company and paid for in notes. These notes were later liquidated by Portland Terminal Company bonds.

Q.—What was done with those bonds? A.—They were sold.

Q.—To whom? A.—The J. P. Morgan Company.

Q.—What was the price paid? A.—A fraction over $88 a share.

FARMER SLAIN AT BURLINGTON; HUNT TWO MEN

The body of Charles E. O'Brien, forty-two years old, a Burlington farmer, was found on his farm on Bedford street, in that town, today. After making an investigation, the Burlington and Woburn police declared O'Brien had been slain probably as a result of a quarrel, and that they had started a search for two men.

The body was discovered by Fred Richardson, a neighbor, who called at the O'Brien house to buy some tomato plants O'Brien was trying on his farm. There were two bullet wounds, one through the heart and the other through the centre of the breast.

Miss Catherine O'Brien, sister of the murder victim, who lived with him, told the authorities she last saw her brother alive about 7.30 last night, when he said he was "going out for a stroll." The police said O'Brien had gone to the house of a neighbor and had been the last of the visitors to leave.

Neighbors heard shots early today, but did not investigate. It is supposed they were the shot which killed O'Brien. No weapon was found near the farmer's body.

O'Brien is survived by two brothers, John, a Woburn letter carrier, and Daniel, who lives in Boston, and four sisters, Mrs. Ellen Fohn of Woburn, Mrs. Margaret Eineen of Lexington, Mrs. Margaret Bertrand of Lowell and Miss Catherine O'Brien.

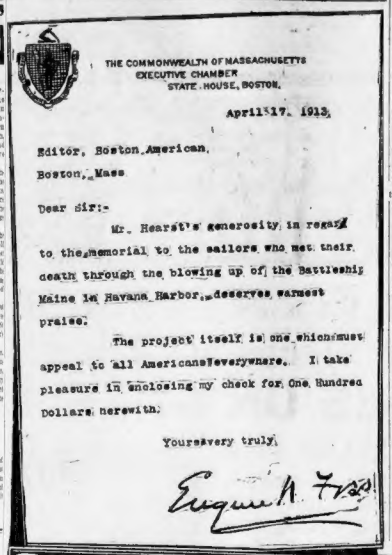
FACSIMILES of letter of Governor Foss praising fund for Battleship Maine Memorial Monument and of check he generously contributed to this fund, which, he says, "must appeal to Americans everywhere."



THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER
STATE HOUSE, BOSTON.

April 17, 1913.

Editor, Boston American,
Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:-

Mr. Hearst's generosity in regard to the memorial to the sailors who met their death through the blowing up of the Battleship Maine in Havana Harbor, deserves earnest praise.

The project itself is one which must appeal to all Americans everywhere. I take pleasure in enclosing my check for One Hundred Dollars herewith.

Yours very truly,

GOVERNOR FOSS AIDS MEMORIAL FOR THE MAINE

Governor Eugene N. Foss has sent a generous check to the Maine Memorial Monument Fund and has recommended it as a worthy and patriotic object.

The Governor, Mayor Fitzgerald, former Congressman Joseph Corry and the Massachusetts Spanish War Veterans have led the way. The public is beginning to realize that it is almost a duty to contribute to the lasting memorial of the martyrs of the Maine.

The Maine Monument in its wonderful location in Columbus Circle in New York City will be seen by many millions of people each year, and its grandeur is a great tribute by the American people to their defenders.

"Why didn't they place the monument in Washington or even in Maine? has been asked.

Because the intention was to locate it where the greatest number of Americans and visitors to America could see it. New York city is the gateway of America. Not only do nine-tenths of the immigrants land in New York, but almost every citizen visits that city at some time in his or her life. That is why the most conspicuous location in the greatest American city has been chosen.

William Randolph Hearst has offered to give $20,000 of the $40,000 required, if the Americans people will make up the rest.

The text of the Governor's letter is as follows:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Mr. Hearst's generosity in regard to the memorial to the sailors who met death through the blowing up of the Maine in Havana Harbor deserves earnest praise.

The project itself is one which must appeal to all Americans everywhere. I take pleasure in enclosing my check for $100 herewith. Yours very truly,

Bostonians See Foster Mother of Titanic Waifs Wed

Miss Margaret Hays, who acted as foster mother to the two little boys known as "the waifs of the Titanic," was married today to Dr. Charles D. Easton of Newport, R. I., a close relative of the Boston family of that name, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hays, in New York. Dr. Easton was formerly at the Massachusetts General Hospital and a number of Boston people went over for the wedding.

Dr. Frank Easton of Laconia, N. H., will be best man, and the ushers will include Dr. Marshall Fabyan of Harvard Medical School, William MacLeod, Mayor of Newport; Ernest Hoe and Charles R. Easton of Providence, and Dr. Fritz Talbot of Boston.

Recently Miss Hays headed a movement to provide funds for the relief of the children who were her fellow passengers on one of the Titanic's lifeboats, and who were said to be living in France in extreme poverty.

Mrs. Beals Pleased Over $1,700 Verdict Against Woodbury

Mrs. Elizabeth T. Beals is delighted with the verdict of the jury which gives her $1,700 in her suit against Milton A. Woodbury, her former husband, whom she still loves, despite the fact that she felt it her duty to bring him into court for the amount of money which she previously gave him for board, lodging and loans.

She expressed her pleasure that she had come out victorious in the famous suit in spite of the fact that counsel for the well-known restaurateur stated today that he will file a bill of exceptions asking for a new trial.

The verdict of the jury was especially gratifying to Mrs. Beals, for while she sued for $1,700, the jury decided that she be awarded the sum of $1,712.94—that amount of money, being plus an interest on the $1,700 at 6 per cent.

EATON COUNSEL GET TWO LINES OF DEFENCE READY

The reluctance of District Attorney Barker of Plymouth County, to admit whether he intends to have Mrs. Jennie May Eaton examined as to her sanity or proceed with her trial on a charge of killing her husband, Admiral Eaton, led counsel for the defence to outline two arguments to offset the prosecution today.

This plan was decided upon following a conference between Attorney William A. Morse, senior counsel for Mrs. Eaton and Attorney Francis J. Geogan of Rockland.

FOSS VETO ON VOTE LISTING AT STATIONS

Governor Foss today sent to the Senate a veto of the bill which would throw open the stationhouses of Boston as places for police registration. At present the work of police listing of voters is conducted only at police headquarters.

The Governor in vetoing the bill declares that the Boston police force is "one of the best administered police bodies in the world." The Governor says that if the bill became a law the stationhouse would become a centre of political activity. The Governor says:

The proposed bill places upon the captains and lieutenants at the station houses a form of duty entirely outside the scope of their regular police work and it is of the utmost importance that these men, instead of being burdened with additional clerical duties, should be left as free as possible to carry on the work for which they are employed, namely, the protection of the city from crime and the preservation of public order.

Gray Hair Recipe

This Simple Recipe, Made Up at Your Home, Solves the Problem.

A good many men and women go through life handicapped by gray hair, believing that it cannot be darkened so as to escape detection among their friends. This is altogether wrong. Of course the cheap dyes and stains are often unsatisfactory, but here is a simple little formula, which you can put up at home for very little cost, that will be found to meet every requirement: To 7 oz. of water add one small box of Barbo Compound, 1 ounce of bay rum and ¼ ounce of glycerine, and you'll have a delightfully good preparation for gradually darkening gray hair or beards, as well as a good remedy for dandruff, and other scalp disorders. It is to be applied once a week until the hair is darkened, then once every two weeks. It has none of the objectionable qualities of ordinary dyes and stains—stickiness, rubbing off, and such defects—and is genuinely reliable in every way.

SCUTARI FALLS; POWERS TO TRY TO ROB VICTORS

VIENNA, April 23.—Montenegro will not be allowed to keep fallen Scutari despite the terrible sacrifices of human life made for its capture. This is the ultimatum of the Powers.

Diplomats have announced today that the decision of the European Powers to retain Scutari as an Albanian city would not be altered.

From a semi-official source it was learned that a note will be forwarded the Montenegrin government within a few days announcing that the captured city will have to be given up.

It is taken as a foregone conclusion, however, that Europe's tiniest kingdom will continue to defy the Powers. Complications of a serious nature are feared.

8,000 KILLED BEFORE SCUTARI; KING NICHOLAS ENTERS IN TRIUMPH

CETTINGE, April 23.—King Nicholas of Montenegro, accompanied by Crown Prince Danilo and the Montenegrin staff, entered the captured city of Scutari in triumph today. After a long siege, which began October 29, when Montenegro declared war against Turkey, the Montenegrin flag finally flies over Scutari.

Three thousand Montenegrins were killed in the final assault Tuesday and 5,000 Turks fell. Twenty-two thousand Turkish prisoners of war were taken.

Since the siege began 10,000 Montenegrins have been killed or wounded.

The assault upon the Turkish city was one of the most remarkable of modern times. Despite the repeated demands of the great Powers of Europe that the bombardment cease, the Montenegrin gunners continued their attacks upon the city, assisted in the last few weeks by the Servians.

The final fall of the city was due chiefly to the Servian artillery. The Servians moved several batteries of powerful siege guns to the firing line and almost continuously day and night for three weeks the Servian guns kept up a terrible fire upon the fortresses surrounding the city.

Scutari fell before a grand assault made by the Montenegrins and their Servian allies after a final general bombardment of forty-eight hours, during which the city was set on fire. The flames were communicated to an immense powder magazine, which exploded with a roar that shook the city.

HARVARD CHANGES ENTRANCE RULES

The change was made to make things easier to high school boys and others who have not had special preparation for entrance examinations. From those who offer both Latin and Greek only fifteen and a half points will be required. In not less than five of the units, however, the grades must be better than D.

FEAR CLASH ON RIVAL "HELLO" DISPUTE BOARD

Miss Annie Malloy, Miss Mary Meagher and Miss Mary C. Murray, today were declared to be the victors in the contest waged by nine members of the Telephone Operators' Union for the three places on their adjustment committee. This committee later will include the officials of the New England Telephone Company, and will adjust all future differences of the employes.

The election was held at the union rooms, No. 7 Warrenton street, yesterday. Voting was from 9:30 a. m. to 10 p. m. The results were not announced until early today. Added interest was taken in the contest because of a rival election at the exchanges, conducted by the company officials and open to all operators whether members of the union or not.

With this double election comes a strong rumor that there may be a clash between the company and the union as to who really ought to serve for the girls on the committee. The girls' union, however, asserts that the Misses Malloy, Meagher and Murray are their choice, which decision they say is final.

MRS. PIPER'S POWER GONE, SAYS HYSLOP

The 700 Boston members of the American Society for Psychic Research are greatly interested in the reports of Secretary James H. Hyslop that for nearly four months he has been in weekly communication with the spirit world through a woman medium whose identity he refuses to reveal. He insists she is not Mrs. Leonora E. Piper of Arlington Heights, with whom he often worked, and whose phenomena of trance mediumship astounded the world of psychology for two decades, beginning in 1886. Dr. Hyslop declares:

"Mrs. Piper has lost her powers. She is not able to go into a trance and produce the automatic writing."

In the course of an interview Dr. Hyslop said:

Hell as a place of sulphur and fire does not exist. Neither does heaven as a place with golden street and harps. Every person lives after death in spirit form.

I was in communication with the spirit world Monday. By proving that the soul is immortal we are overcoming the present dread of death. People will soon feel far less, and consequently there will be room for many more in this life.

Not only mental, but organic diseases are being cured by our system of mental healing.

Improvement, if not cure, of tuberculosis and cancer is possible.

With the necessary knowledge it will eventually be possible for the average normal person to communicate through a medium with the spirit world. The normal person has a better chance to do so than the abnormal.

Usually I have been in communication with the spirit world, through my medium, weekly since the first of the year. As a rule I have communicated with persons I have known or have heard of, although occasionally I get in touch with a stranger.

I believe that a spirit is invisible, but the thoughts of a spirit, I believe, take shape and result in dreams or apparitions.

The ultimate establishment as true of our beliefs will modify the Christian religion to some extent by proving some of its dogmas useless and absurd, but it will help it to the extent of proving the immortality of the soul.

Science is proving to us a friendly ear. Three college presidents and many college professors believe as we do, but they have told me not to make pub.c their names.

AMUNDSEN'S FRAM MAY ENTER CANAL BY END OF YEAR

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Colonel Goethals, chief engineer of the Panama Canal, says he may be able to admit Explorer Amundsen's ship, Fram, to the new waterway before the end of the year. He said: "The present schedule contemplates admitting the water into Culebra Cut in October and the completion of one flight of locks at either end of the canal by that same date. It is hoped that we will be able to pass the Fram before the close of 1913."

HIGGINS FINDS FACTS TO BACK CARTER STORY

District Attorney Higgins of Middlesex county has partially confirmed Ellis Carter's story of how he killed Mrs. Mildred Thurston, and is pursuing his investigations today to corroborate other parts of the former pugilist's confession.

Carter claims he killed Mrs. Thurston on learning she had framed against the lovely beauty until she confessed. Medical Examiner Durrell is said to have told District Attorney Higgins the bruises on the woman's throat were not inflicted by the knife that penetrated the heart, nor by strangulation was caused by an internal hemorrhage as a result of the bruise on the nose.

It was said today that District Attorney Higgins has secured sufficient evidence to corroborate Carter's confession to warrant bringing the slayer of William McDermott to trial for the murder of Mrs. Thurston.

Medical Examiner Durrell and newspaper men who heard Carter's confession on the night he was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of McDermott, are expected to be among the principal witnesses for the prosecution.

POISON TAKEN BY 'PALMIST' IS MYSTERY STILL

The motive of the mysterious poison with which "Fletcher, the palmist" ended his life when confronted with arrest in his luxurious suite in the Hotel Fairhaven, was sought today by the police.

This points was Fletcher's answer to the famous catch-line which appeared in his many advertisements of his business, or "profession" as he called it, of palmistry.

This catch-line was:

THERE IS ALWAYS A WAY OUT.

Fletcher, or John W. Fletcher, to use his full name, used this line to catch the casual eye. He meant the reader to infer that, no matter what the reader's trouble, there was "always a way out," and that "Fletcher, the Palmist," would find the way.

Warrant Ends All.

This catch-line was cited with grim significance today as the police and by people familiar with Fletcher's career. He had "a way out" all prepared for himself when dire trouble should come.

This trouble—in the form of a warrant for arrest on a shameful charge, came. Fletcher took the "way out." He poisoned himself and sprang into that great unknown which he always pretended to be able to penetrate.

When arrested Fletcher swallowed three pellets which he took from a vest pocket. They did not kill instantly. He started to telephone, but fell unconscious with the receiver in his hands. He died a little later at the Relief Hospital.

His death was carried out by himself in just the way that is so often described in popular magazine stories. The criminal, fearing arrest, is prepared to die. The poison pill, or the "small vial of colorless liquid," are the favorite ways set forth by the imaginative writers.

Did It Dramatically.

High-browed folks, who scorn popular fiction, and snuffy psychologists, have said repeatedly that no criminal ever carries poison around with him this way and never takes his life in such a dramatic manner.

But Fletcher did it, just as dramatically as any criminal hero conceived by E. Phillips Oppenheim or Henry C. Rowland or old "Cap" Collier.

The police seek to learn the exact nature of the poison in the pellets Fletcher swallowed. It is powerful enough to kill in a short time, yet not so quick on its action as cyanide of potassium. The pills, of which the police caught a glimpse before Fletcher took them, were white. But this may have been merely the color of the compounding mixture.

The poison seems to differ, so far as leaving any taint on the mouth or lips. Some poisons have such odor that a physician, by sniffing, can tell the nature of the deadly agent. But not so with the poison that Fletcher used.

Medical Examiner Magrath arranged to perform an autopsy today. It was said that Fletcher's stomach might be sent to Professor Whitney of Harvard Medical School for analysis if the poison could not be determined any other way.

Nash Formally Indorsed by Hollis as "Naval Officer"

A dispatch from Washington today stated that formal indorsement of John B. Nash of Conway, N. H., to be naval officer at the port of Boston, has been filed with Secretary of Navy McAdoo by United States Senator Hollis of New Hampshire.

The post carries a salary of $5,000 a year and has been held for years by J. O. Lyford of New Hampshire, a Republican.

The plums has always been given to a New Hampshire man, but this year there has been a reorganization of the customs service and the ports of Massachusetts have all been merged into a Massachusetts district. New Hampshire has been taken from the district.

Whether Secretary McAdoo will defer to fill the Massachusetts office with a Massachusetts man or whether he will follow traditions and name Nash is anxiously awaited by the New Hampshire man's friends.

SCHOOL STRIKE AT PITTSBURGH STILL GROWING

PITTSBURGH, April 23.—The protest strike of Pittsburgh school children against the reinstatement of Superintendent Hester continued to grow today. Reports from various parts of the city indicated that the attendance in the schools was less than yesterday. One hundred high school students joined the strike this morning and paraded through the downtown section. It was estimated that 25,000 children were affected by the strike. The younger strikers, however, abandoned their militant tactics of yesterday, and contented their blazing banners denouncing the superintendent.

The committee, composed of seven disinterested citizens appointed by the Board of Education to investigate Superintendent Hester's moral conduct, today prepared to start an investigation. The committee represents practically every phase of social and religious life.

500 STRIKERS AT IPSWICH MILLS IN CLASH WITH POLICE

IPSWICH, April 23.—Five hundred of the 900 strikers of the Ipswich Mills gathered before the mill gates shortly before 7 a. m. today and, despite the efforts of a cordon of police headed by Chief Hull, created a disturbance among the employes, including several women who were returning to work. Fist fights followed. Although several were in the mixup no one was seriously injured and the police finally succeeded in driving the strikers away.

Following the demonstration at the gates the strikers marched through the streets, singing and exhorting the townspeople to come to their aid.

AHERN'S MIND AFFECTED BY BUSINESS CARE

The mysterious disappearance of Fred Ahern, the young Cohasset coal dealer and grand knight of Cohasset Council, K. of C., who is back at his home after an absence of two weeks, is explained by business troubles and worry over the death of his father, according to his relatives. The physician attending Ahern refused to permit any of the family at Cohasset to see the young man any questions. The family declared a full statement would be given out as soon as Ahern is sufficiently recovered to give a clear account of the past two weeks.

All Ahern has been able to recall is that he fell sick at Dover, N. H., and went into the depot. His mind is practically a blank on everything else, it is said.

Austin Ahern, brother of the young coal dealer, said his brother had not had a prosperous season in the coal business, and that he had noticed that he did considerable worrying. Mrs. Margaret Ahern, mother of the coal man, said that grief over his father's death, added to business worry, made her son a nervous wreck.

MERGING OF COAST SERVICES PLANNED

Grave on the Land
B. A. Massett

For 5 cents you can buy more GOOD Tobacco than ever before. Ask for MASCOT.

Men, don't make the mistake of thinking MASCOT is "Just another one of those nickel brands."

It is distinctly and absolutely ten cent tobacco quality and quantity for 5 cents. I know tobacco from T to the final O and I'm telling you the plain unvarnished truth.

The only reason I can sell you this extra good tobacco for 5 cents is because I have done away with the costly tin box and have packed MASCOT in an inexpensive moisture proof cloth pouch.

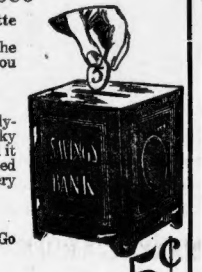
Tin boxes cost the manufacturers an awful lot of money. Naturally, they pass that cost to you. When you buy a tin-box tobacco you pay a good stiff price for the tin. But you can't smoke the tin. So—

Why buy the tin?

MASCOT

CRUSHED CUT TOBACCO

There was never one like it—for pipe and cigarette



saves you half your tobacco money—or doubles the purchasing power of your nickel—whichever way you want to look at it,

And it gives you the best quality tobacco, too.

MASCOT is made of the very cleanest, carefully-cured, mild old Burley leaf—the best Kentucky grows—sun-sweet and bloom-fragrant—aged until it is mellow; then sliced, re-sliced, rolled and crushed until all the tobacco runs uniformly through every bit of it and none of it "smokes in streaks."

Men, you can't buy better tobacco. I know.

Put a nickel on my tobacco judgment today. Go to your tobacconist and get a pouch of MASCOT.

CHARLES S. NORRIS, 181 TREMONT ST. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1913. CHARLES S. NORRIS, 181 TREMONT ST.

PRAISE for THE AUTOPIANO From HIS HOLINESS, POPE PIUS X.

(Permission to publish granted Charles S. Norris, 181 Tremont Street, Boston)

Although many medals have been awarded to the Autopiano, no honor received is considered greater than that bestowed on this marvelous instrument by His Holiness, Pope Pius X., who presented the Autopiano Co. with a handsome gold medal as a recognition of the artistic merit of the Autopiano.

The following letter accompanied the medal:

Del Vaticano.

Sir:—His Holiness charges me to thank you for the beautiful instrument just received, and desires that I send you the two medals inclosed, one for Gustin Wright & Co. and the other for The Autopiano Co., as a recompense for its artistic merit.

R. CARD. MERRY DEL VAL.

The Autopiano is the world's greatest player piano. It is the most musical of all self-playing instruments and is endorsed by the most famous artists of our time. Will play for you (without any knowledge of music or playing on your part) the world's greatest music, new and old. All opera and popular music prepared for the Autopiano as soon as published and loaned to you without charge by the sole Boston Agent, Chas. S. Norris, 181 Tremont street.

A great many people have in their home what is practically a "Dead piano." No one knows how to play it—son and daughter who used to play and entertain the family have married and the piano is now merely an expensive ornament. Now is the time to get an Autopiano—put in the music roll, start it—That's all you have to do.

You can exchange your old piano for an Autopiano. We have a plan that will allow you to exchange, giving you the full value for your exchange.

His Imperial Majesty, Ahmed Mizra, the Shah of Persia, possesses an Autopiano, and as a recognition of its merit has presented to the Autopiano Company a gold medal and appointed them purveyors of the Imperial Court of Persia.

MARY GARDEN SAYS:

I was much pleased to listen to your rendition of the Autopiano, which is the height of ingenuity when it comes to playing the piano by means of a music-roll. Your instrument follows thoroughly the interpretation of the performers, giving a dignified reading of the classics. By your system for accenting the melody, one is led to imagine hearing the velvety touch of a Paderewski, and it seems to live and breathe.

Sincerely, MARY GARDEN.

Will play for you (without any knowledge of music or playing on your part) the world's greatest music, new and old. All opera and popular music prepared for the Autopiano as soon as published and loaned our patrons without charge.

TETRAZZINI SAYS:

The Autopiano is a blessing to humanity. It should be in every home, for it brings with it the culture and refinement which only the compositions of the great masters afford. I find I can play the great operas with the same feeling and expression with which I sing them. I love to play it— it is wonderful—there is no player piano to equal it.

Faithfully yours,

LUISA TETRAZZINI.

VICTOR HERBERT SAYS:

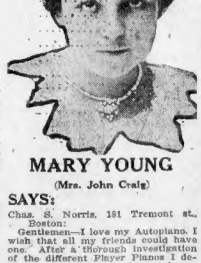
An Autopiano is also in the home of Victor Herbert, the world-famous popular American composer, whose light operas, "Naughty Marietta," "Mlle. Modiste," "It Happened in Nordland," "Algeria," etc., charm and delight audiences everywhere. His endorsement and praise is therefore praise indeed:

Mr. Richard W. Lawrence, President, The Autopiano Co., 31st St. and 11th Ave., New York.

Dear Mr. Lawrence:—I want you to know that the Autopiano in my home has been a source of pleasure to the entire household. I can readily understand its remarkable success, now that I am thoroughly familiar with its many points of excellence. It is wonderful how artistic are the effects that may be had in playing it with the music-roll, while as a piano for hand playing it is an instrument of remarkable quality. Any home possessing an Autopiano has, in my opinion, a splendid equipment for musical pleasure.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) VICTOR HERBERT.



MARY YOUNG
(Mrs. John Craig)

SAYS:

Chas. S. Norris, 181 Tremont st., Boston:

Gentlemen—I love my Autopiano. I wish that all my friends could have one. After a thorough investigation of the different Player Pianos I decided on an Autopiano for my home, on account of its exquisitely beautiful tone and its wonderful expression.

Sincerely,

MRS. JOHN CRAIG (Mary Young),
Castle Square Theatre.

THE PIANOS OF KRANICH & BACH

IT is well to know that the Kranich & Bach Pianos are manufactured by Kranich & Bach. This statement is made because of the fact that a great many pianos are not manufactured at all by those whose names are associated with them, but are merely "assembled," as it is called. All the various parts of the instrument are purchased in the open market from individual manufacturers of those parts, and the parts are then assembled or put together by the owners of "piano factories," and their names placed upon the completed instrument, which is then called by that name.

There are not more than four or five makes of pianos beside the Kranich & Bach every part of which is actually made by the manufacturers of those pianos in their own factories.

The pianos of Kranich & Bach are actually made, in their entirety, by Kranich & Bach in the Kranich & Bach factories. Kranich & Bach make their own cases, their own actions, keyboards, sounding boards, etc.; in short, they make all the parts. They do not "assemble," they actually produce the instrument and are its makers. Every particle and portion of it is, therefore, emphatically understood and warranted by them. It can readily be seen what differences there must be in the construction of an article, especially when it is an artistic one, under these two distinctly contrary mechanical manipulations.

Instruments that are "assembled" cannot be artistic.

Instruments that are built like the Kranich & Bach Pianos, necessarily abide under an artistic principle. Nearly fifty years of intense application for the purpose of securing the most refined and susceptible tone quality that can emanate from the piano, together with the most rigorous attention to the question of construction in its relation to durability, have made it possible to substantiate the claim that the Kranich & Bach Piano is an artistic creation of the highest order. Chas. S. Norris is Sole Kranich & Bach Agent for this territory and Rhode Island.

HOW BILLARD GRABBED THE B. & M. WITH HIS "I. O. U." FOR $13,000,000

Sold Stock Later to New Haven and Cleared $2,700,000 in Real Money.

the Portland Terminal Company? A—We do.

Q—What did you pay for it? A—Par, I think.

Q—What dividend do you receive on this Portland Company stock? A—Five per cent.

Was Railroad Director.

Q—What is the Ricker Hotel Company purchase mentioned in your report? A—It is a hotel property owned by that company consisting of Samoset Hotel at Rockland and other Summer hotels in different sections of the State.

Q—When did the Maine Central first acquire an interest in the Samoset Hotel at Rockland? A—Some two years ago.

Q—Why did the Maine Central go into the hotel business. A—To aid in developing tourists travel. This we think eventually will be a source of added income for the road.

Q—How much money have you laid out in the hotel property? A—I have not the exact figures with me, but will secure them if you desire me to.

Q—What is this property at Bar Harbor you bought? A—Property on which we intended to erect a hotel. Did.

Q—Can you say that the Maine Central is now provided with the equipment necessary for the satisfactory operation of the road? A—We consider it so. In addition to the equipment now owned by the road, we have made an appropriation of more than $1,000,000 for new equipment which has not yet been received.

Q—You have the money with which to pay these bills. A—We have and the appropriation already has been made.

This ended the direct questioning of Mr. Hobbs by Judge Prouty. Attorney Brandeis then started in to cross-examine the witness.

Q—What Samoset Hotel property belonged to whom. A—The Ricker Hotel Company.

Q—Was this the same Mr. Ricker who was on the board of directors of the Boston & Maine Railroad? A—Yes.

Q—Did you think that the hotels owned by that company had not been properly managed and that you took them over to develop tourist travel? A—No, I don't look at it in that light. We thought they could be developed into a good paying investment.

Q—How much did you pay for this property? A—I haven't the exact figures with me.

Q—But approximately how much would you say. A—I should say $1,400,000.

Assumed All the Liabilities.

Q—In addition to that you assumed the liabilities of this company did you not? What did they amount to? A—About $1,000,000.

Q—This increase of $16,000,000 in capital stock of your road since 1903; how much of that indebtedness has been incurred since 1903? A—All since July 1, 1913.

Q—All since Mr. Mellen became president, has it not—since the New Haven interests got control? in addition to that you must add the $4,500,000 used to purchase the Portland Terminal Company.

A—Well, you must allow for—

Q—No, answer my question. Have not the total indebtedness of the Maine Central practically increased $20,000,000 since the New Haven assumed control? A—I suppose so, if you put it that way.

Mr. Hobbs was taken in hand again by Judge Prouty and subjected to a third degree examination concerning the Hampden County railroad branch which the Boston & Maine is building in the western part of Massachusetts.

Commissioner Prouty's interrogations brought out the fact that the Boston & Maine was paying at the rate of $12,000 a mile for this branch, which is fifteen and one-fifth miles in length. Judge Prouty pronounced as extravagant when the Maine Central's leased roads cost on an average of only $3,000 a mile.

"That Hampden County line is costing almost as much as the Calebra cut," said Commissioner Prouty, and everybody in the room laughed.

Vice-President Hobbs said that the Hampden corporation issued stock at par to the amount of $400,000.

Q. (By Judge Prouty)—What is the Boston & Maine going to do with that road?

Vice-President Hobbs hesitated so long before replying that Commissioner Prouty said: "If you don't know, say so."

"I was trying to think," replied Mr. Hobbs. "It is to develop traffic."

Quotes Mellen's Address.

Q.—What kind of traffic. A.—If permitted I would like to read that portion of the president's annual report in which he sets forth the object of this new road. He states that it will be a single track from Springfield on the Southern Division to Readsville and that it will be 15 miles and 20-100 long. This will serve as a more direct route of the Massachusetts Central from New York to Boston, by way of the Boston & Maine, and will give more direct access to resorts in Maine and New Hampshire.

He says it will promote the interests and the arings of the road materially.

Q.—Freight or passenger. A.—Both I suppose.

Q.—What other lines are there in central Massachusetts today? A.—I can't say.

Q.—What are the earnings per mile of the Boston & Maine? A.—$20,000 gross and $4,858 net.

"Bad as Culebra Cut."

Q.—What will be the cost of this new Hampden branch per mile? A.—It will cost $12,000 a mile.

Q.—What is your average cost per mile for leased roads? A.—I don't know.

"I have had that figured out by experts and find that a fair average is $2,000 a mile for your leased lines," said the Commissioner.

Q.—With that as a basis, how is it that you are paying as high as $12,000 on this branch? A.—I understand that it was a very deep and difficult cut, and that much rock was encountered.

Q.—Well, it's costing almost as much as the Calebra Cut, isn't it? (Laughter.) No reply.

Q.—This Hampden road is parallel to one of your affiliated roads—I refer to the Boston & Albany? A.—We are not affiliated with the Boston & Albany road.

Q.—Wasn't any agreement made between the Boston & Albany and the Boston & Maine? A.—Simply an agreement as to traffic rights.

Q.—I know that the New Haven is affiliated with you, and the New Haven owns your road, doesn't it? A.—Yes. But we only have traffic agreements with the Boston & Albany.

Solicitor Rich on Stand.

At this point Edgar J. Rich, chief solicitor for the Boston & Maine came to Vice President Hobbs' assistance. He had Mr. Hobbs give the dates of the Boston & Maine's lease of the new fifteen-mile Hampden branch, which he said was September 5, 1911.

Q.—You stated, Mr. Hobbs, that this branch crossed the Connecticut River. Where does it cross the river? A.—Just out of Springfield, I believe.

Attorney Rich: "This is a mistake. Our Hampden branch does not cross the Connecticut River at any point."

Commissioner Prouty—What was the object in building this branch?

Vice-President Hobbs—It was the judgment of the directors.

Q.—When was that judgment passed? A.—At a joint meeting between the directors of the Boston & Maine and the Hampden corporation. It was considered to be a public necessity.

Attorney Rich—The directors of the Boston & Maine exercised their best judgment in the matter and after honestly weighing all the circumstances, the cost, etc., decided to go ahead. Whether that judgment erred is a matter to be determined later. The directors felt that it was for the good of the public service.

Agreement With the Albany.

Commissioner Prouty—I would like to have the records of that approval. Attorney Rich—They shall be submitted to you.

Commissioner Prouty—Mr. Hobbs, was there any agreement between the Boston & Maine and the Boston & Albany concerning the use of the road. A.—There was an agreement for a contract.

Q.—When was this agreement entered into. A.—On July 15, 1912.

Q.—What was that agreement. A.—A tentative agreement with the Boston & Albany.

Q.—Did the Hampden road have any arrangement with the Boston & Albany by which it was to use the Boston & Albany terminals until July 15, 1912? A.—I don't know.

Attorney Rich—This was a separate agreement, wasn't it? A.—Yes.

Further debate brought out the fact from Attorney Rich that the Hampden branch would cause a saving of twenty-three miles by way of New York and Springfield to points in New Hampshire and Maine over the Boston & Maine.

Commissioner Prouty, who repeatedly in his examination questioned the wisdom of building this road, admitted to Attorney Rich that this saving of twenty-three miles would undoubtedly benefit passenger service. He added that it had not been made clear to him why the Boston & Maine had not made negotiations to use the Athol branch to Readsville. Attorney Rich replied that if this had been done the Athol branch would have to be rebuilt. He further stated that the Boston & Maine had been forced to pay a very high rental to the Boston & Albany for its traffic rights on that road and that the Boston & Maine felt it would be more independent and give better service by operating the new Hampden branch.

Attorney Rich had Vice-President Hobbs give a detailed account of the financial affairs of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven.

Mr. Hobbs stated that the operating account of the Boston & Maine was $7,544,711. He said the outside revenue for rent was $861,564.31; dividends on stock $482,000.

Commissioner Prouty: "Then this would make your outside income about a million dollars. A.—Not quite that as 30,000 shares of Worcester & Nashua do not now pay dividends so those dividends are lacking.

Q.—Then your outside revenue will amount to approximately $600,000? A.—About that.

Q.—And was your gross property income? A.—That was $8,506,216. Our rental from leased roads, $5,286,000.

Dividends From Surplus.

Q.—Attorney Rich: Mr. Hobbs, our friend, Mr. Brandeis, has placed emphasis on the fact that he considers it strange for the Boston & Maine Railroad to pay dividends larger than it's earnings. How was that permissible? A.—We had a reserve fund for that very purpose. In 1911 the Boston & Maine earned only ½ of 1 per cent., but paid a 6 per cent. dividend and in 1912 the earnings amounted to 2.810, over 2 per cent., dividends were paid. This was made possible by using the balance from a surplus fund of $2,000,000.

Attorney Rich—May it please the commission it is now impossible under the law to sell Boston & Maine stock less than par. For this very purpose a reserve fund has been kept in order to pay dividends so that the investments of share holders may yield a profit. It is merely applying the banking policy. Not long ago a law was dug up in New Hampshire which proved an obstacle. It was discovered that this law regulated the sale at par and not under of trolley electric railway stocks and was so indexed, yet it was made applicable to railroads and we suffered in consequence.

Made $2,700,000 on B. & M.

The story of how John L. Billard, a Meriden, Ct., coal dealer, made a lump sum of $2,700,000 in a sale of Boston & Maine stock to the New Haven was brought out before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty.

Mr. Billard needed $12,000,000 for the transaction. He borrowed the money on his notes principally to the National City Bank of New York. He gave no collateral.

He then bought Boston & Maine stock at $125 a share. Suddenly the price rose to $150 a share. He then took up his old notes, making new ones for more time. These were secured by the Boston & Maine stock.

Then his friend, President Charles S. Mellen of the New Haven, bought his stock. Mr. Billard pulled down the $2,700,000 profit, cancelled all his notes and retired for awhile with some real money. He hadn't put up a cent of cash.

Another transaction in which Mr. Billard, through the John L. Billard Company, figured was on September 29, 1910. The New England Navigation Company, a New Haven subsidiary, sold to the Billard company 1,372 shares of the New Haven road at $153 a share, and in exchange took the Billard company's note for $2,000,000.

"What was the purpose of that transaction?" queried Attorney Brandeis.

"I don't know," replied Expert Accountant David E. Brown.

Billard Free with His Notes.

Mr. Billard's name appears on other notes for $8,000, for $20,000 and $46,000. It appears that Billard and others were negotiating for the purchase of the Nashua & Worcester Railroad.

Other notes held by Billard were one for $150,000, another for $50,000, on April 12, 1912.

"Why did the Billard Company figure in these transactions?" asked Mr. Brandeis.

"I don't know," replied Expert Brown. In the publication of the names of the men who were paid out of the special fund of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad appeared the name of McDonald. Some confounded this McDonald with Donald MacDonald of Practical Politics. The man who received the money from the New Haven was not Donald C. MacDonald of Practical Politics, but another McDonald.

Here Are the Fourteen Who Received New Haven Cash for "Special Services"

Here are names of fourteen men who were paid $7,151.38 for "special services" at the Massachusetts State House by the New Haven Railroad, as shown by the official transcript of testimony taken at the Interstate Commerce hearings:

H. H. WILSON, legislative agent of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers	$350.00
BERT L. HUNT, lobbyist	1,816.38
E. WENTWORTH PRESCOTT, State House reporter of Boston News Bureau	300.00
FRANK M. CHASE of Fall River, County Commissioner of Bristol County, in three payments	1,650
FRANK J. DONAHUE, now Secretary of State, but employed by Practical Politics, a weekly newspaper, at time services were rendered	250.00
T. J. BARTER, well known at the State House	250.00
JOHN M. McDONALD, well known at the State House	400.00
J. R. ALLERBY, well known lobbyist	250.00
SYLVESTER BAXTER, well known writer on transportation topics in defence of the New Haven	500.00
H. C. PAGE, director in the Worcester Street Railways Company	200.00
HENRY E. BOWDIN, the well known lobbyist	500.00
FRANK J. LADD, lobbyist, particularly active at time of the Hill Towns agitation in western Massachusetts for New Haven owned trolleys	600.00
THOMAS F. DOLAN, lobbyist, not recently active at State House	25.00
GEORGE R. CONROY, former political writer on the Boston Herald, now editor and publisher of a weekly newspaper, "Truth," which devotes much space to praising the New Haven Railroad and President C. S. Mellen	200.00
Total	$7,551.38

David E. Brown, expert accountant for the commission, stated that all of the above payments were grouped under a general heading, "special expense," with no details as to why some of them were paid, as to how the money was spent, or what services were rendered.

Occasionally vouchers state that the money was paid for "law expenses, account special services, on legal matters in Massachusetts for 1912."

Mr. Brown stated that Vice-President Timothy E. Byrnes made payment on these vouchers even before they were audited.

CASSIDY SHOWS HOW BUTTER BILL WILL AID ALL HONEST DEALERS

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

Governor Foss' veto of the bill forbidding the sale of any but honest butter in Massachusetts comes up tomorrow for consideration before the Senate.

I hope that the veto will be overruled. Every Senator who votes in favor of the bill and against the Governor will be voting to protect:

The honest farmer.
The honest dairyman.
The honest butter wholesaler.
The honest butter retailer.
And the consumer.

Those Senators who vote in favor of the bill, whether Republican or Democratic, will deserve the highest praise, for they will have evidenced their independence of the influences which have fought to defeat the measure.

I do not care to repeat my statements as to why this bill should pass. But I do wish to quote in full the remarkable lucid and convincing statement given out by P. H. Mullowney of the Boston Board of Health, immediately after the veto was announced.

Health Board Statement.

This statement has been quoted in part. It is here reproduced in full:

"The Boston Board of Health regrets exceedingly that the Governor has vetoed the act to establish a standard for butter and oleomargarine, and thinks that his fears that the enactment of such a law would operate to the disadvantage of the agricultural interests of this State are unfounded.

"This department in years past has analyzed butter that ran as high as 30 per cent. in moisture, THE BUTTER BEING MANUFACTURED IN THIS CITY.

"Complaint was made to the Court, under Sections 16 and 18, Chapter 75 of the Revised Laws, which states that food shall be deemed to be adulterated 'if any substance has been mixed with it so as to reduce, depreciate or injuriously affect its quality, strength and purity,' but the courts have refused to entertain any action.

"With the passage of a law such as set forth in this bill, it would be possible to stop the operations of a small coterie of men in Boston who are from time to time producing butter which has been found to run as high as 30 per cent. water.

"As far as the retail dealers are concerned, most of their butter and oleomargarine is obtained from without the State and is subject to Federal inspection, and in the history of this department has never been found to approach as high as 16 per cent. water content.

Disagrees with Foss.

"This board does not agree with the Governor, that it would require exhaustive laboratory tests at a cost of from $2 to $5 a test, to determine the moisture content of butter, as in the government service this is done by laymen, who after a little coaching can readily perform it, an evaporator and scales being the only apparatus necessary. This apparatus can be purchased for about $15, and as there are no chemical re-agents used, there is no extra cost for each analysis.

"Therefore, it would not be necessary for the honest retailer to employ chemical assistants to determine the moisture content of his butter.

"The passage of this act would have put the power in the hands of health authorities to stop this nefarious traffic in butter containing an exorbitant amount of water, a power which under the present laws they have not got.

I wish to refer briefly to the emphasized portions of that statement.

"This department in years past has analyzed butter that ran as high as 30 per cent. in moisture—all being manufactured in this city."

That is—the butter imported, subject to a regulation by the Federal revenue department, and by the Department of Agriculture, is all right. But the dealers who buy a tub of butter at a time, in Boston, are taking that tub, and by "washing" it in water, are making one tub into two. Thus they double their profits and defraud every customer they serve. Thus also they cheat every honest manufacturer or seller of butter in the State.

Argues for Bill.

I quote again:

"With the passage of a law such as set forth, it would be possible to stop the operations of this small coterie of men in Boston."

Without this law, it has been found impossible to stop their cheating. The courts have ruled that they violate no law.

The grocer who puts water in his milk violates the law.

The grocer who performs any one of a dozen similar frauds violates in each case some law.

The grocer who puts sand in sugar violates a law.

The grocer who puts dust in his spices violates a law.

BUT THE GROCER WHO PUTS WATER IN HIS BUTTER VIOLATES NO LAW.

The Governor's veto should not be sustained. The bill should pass.

BELGIAN WORKERS REJOICE OVER BIG BALLOT VICTORY

BRUSSELS, April 23.—There was national rejoicing today on the part of Socialist workmen over their victory in the manhood suffrage strike, by which the laborer class has won a great victory, and it is predicted that the end of the clerical control of the government is in sight.

King Albert is reported to have played a strong hand in guiding the government's policy. The King is also said to have spoken to Premier Broqueville against the plural voting power of rich Belgians, calling it "arbitrary and unconstitutional." A parade to celebrate the victory was held here today.

While workmen resumed their posts pretty generally, there will not be a complete resumption until next Monday.

THEATRICAL "BATH" URGED FOR BOSTON

Milton Rosmer of Miss Horniman's manchester players compares the Centre to the public baths and beholding drinking fountains.

He urges municipal appropriations in support of the theatre, saying it should be in part owned by the people.

Rosmer believes the Drama League ought to organize to guarantee Boston a loving good, but little known, plays to come here and provide the people with "baths," mental and moral.

A New Remedy for an Old Complaint

The careless selection of widely advertised and orthodox remedies is the cause of a good deal of misery. Be careful of taking without your doctor's orders, drugs that contain calomel, which is an old form, and other drastic cathartics, which irritate the bowels, act only on a single organ and cannot stimulate all the different digestive organs, diseased.

These facts led to a great deal of experimentation and finally to the discovery of Hunyadi Janos Pills, a scientific and perfect combination, which does not irritate, gripe or weaken, but by the proper regulation of the one and co-ordination of the other, Hunyadi Janos Pills are recommended to relieve constipation, biliousness, indigestion and especially sluggishness of the liver. Take anywhere from 1 to 6 to 10 pills—one or two pills at night, if desired, and save. They work wisely and surely, with a resulting —without griping, a box and by them tonight. You'll see the reason why—the next morning. Price 50c. Obtainable at any up-to-date Drug Store, or by mail from A. Saxlehner, New York.

For teaching football to Harvard men—75 cents a minute.

For teaching classics to Harvard men—52-5 cents a minute.

That is how the wages of instructors of youth run at the Cambridge university, according to statistics compiled by Francis W. Hunnewell, 24, controller of Harvard University.

Coach Percy Haughton's pay has been raised from $5,000 to $7,500 this year, says a well founded report from across the river. That means $125 a day, or about 75 cents a minute for actual working time. Harvard professors get about $4,000 a year, and work ten months about five hours a day, six days in the week. They get a little over 3 cents a minute for their actual time.

The total coaching job lasts twelve weeks, practice starting in the first week of September, and continuing until the third week in November.

OCCULT ROOM SECRETS BARED IN WADE DECREE

Amazing incidents in the life of the late Joseph M. Wade, the seventy-year-old editor of a trade journal—a man who considered himself the spiritual husband of Madame Helena Petrovana Blavatsky, who introduced the rites of Theosophy in the Western Hemisphere—a man who despite his advanced years, held daily communion with spirits in a suite of rooms in his Dorchester home, which he had fitted up as "occult chambers" are disclosed in a master's report, filed in the Suffolk Superior Court.

This report tells how his idols and valuable collection of Japanese and Oriental art objects, which he cherished as much as he did his life, was taken from him by Japanese whose country he had aided in time of distress.

It tells how Wade, upon near death, signed away his collection, worth between $15,000 and $20,000. It tells how friends of the man whom the Mikado of Japan had decorated for the aid he had given to the widows and orphans of the Japanese sailors and soldiers in the war with Russia, placed a pen in his hand and got from him what they purported was his signature to a document giving them the knowledge of the sacred rows and holds that raised the imagination of the aged man to great heights when he entered his "occult room."

Death-Bed Signature.

These former friends were used by the executor of the estate to have the alleged bill of sale declared void. The executor succeeded.

Joseph M. Wade was the editor of a trade journal called "Fibre and Fabric." He lived at No. 347 Columbia road, Dorchester, and died there on January 22, 1913.

The men named in the death-bed transaction by Master Robert D. Weston are Morimoto, manager of the Yamanaka & Co. Boston shop; Ushikubo, manager of the New York shop of the firm and Rokusaburo Yamanaka, who resides in London.

Began to Await Death.

He handed himself a spiritual husband of Madame Blavatsky in more or less mood or mysterious medium. In imagination he was surrounded with spirits with whom he would talk. He had rooms in his house which he called the "Occult rooms," in which were various objects of Japanese art, and in this room he often retired, apparently for the purpose of communing with the spirits.

For some years prior to his death, he had been much interested in Japanese art and in Japanese people.

The master further reported that about January 16, 1913, Morimoto, manager of the defendant's shop and Bushiro in Boston, learned that Mr. Wade was dying. Ushikubo, employed as manager of the New York shops of the defendant, was sent for. Rokusaburo Yamanaka, who lived in London, was in New York at the time, and he and Ushikubo came to Boston.

The Columbus Club of Dorchester has completed all the necessary arrangements for its annual comic opera, "The Rose of India," which will be given tonight and tomorrow evening at Boston College Hall.

The Columbus Club, which comprises five of the largest comics in Boston, is made up of the Elm Hill, James E. Hayes, Mt. Vernon, Dorchester and Mt. Bowdoin Councils, all of which have been working hard for the successes of the affair.

The opera is the production of Stanton Hill of the Harvard Glee Club. Three of the most charming young ladies in the east are Miss Edith McCarthy, a principal; Miss Lillian Feeney and Miss Emily White.

BOSTON LATIN ON 278TH ANNIVERSARY HOLDS CLASS DAY

Boston Latin School celebrated its 278th anniversary today. In the presence of hundreds of former pupils, including Mayor Fitzgerald, the 1913 class held its class day exercises in the school hall as the main feature of the anniversary celebration.

The orator of the day was Frank G. Montague, president of the graduating class; the class orator, Samuel A. J. Kelley, and the class poet, Harold W. Gleason. A special song written by Butler Wilson, Jr., and Arthur Marsh was sung by the latter, the class joining in the chorus.

Lieutenant-Governor David I. Walsh gave an address on "Citizenship." The exercises closed with an exhibition drill in the drill hall.

HOLD SUSPECT IN ATTLEBORO DEATH CASE

HARTFORD, Ct., April 23.—A man thought to be Finton Thompson of Pawtucket, R. I., wanted on a warrant charging him with the murder of Mrs. Mariah D. Colhart, in Attleboro, Mass., is under arrest here, after a revolver duel with the police.

He gave the name of Murphy and said he came from Pawtucket. The man's description had been wired about, but when officers went to take him from a train bound for New York he opened fire upon them.

Thompson is accused by two other men, Edward C. Mutter of Pawtucket and Oscar Champagne of Attleboro, who were captured after a running fight with the police after an attempt to rob the North Attleboro station, of being the leader of a band of desperadoes who were responsible for all of the recent Attleboro outrages, which culminated in the murder of Miss Colhart and the shooting of Joseph and Mary Powers.

They declare that he carried a revolver of the type used on Mrs. Colhart, that he was a crack shot, and that he was responsible for the attempt to rob the Colhart home.

The warrants were sworn out on their statements.

In interviewing Thompson's wife at her home on Whipple street, Pawtucket, the police discovered that he had deserted his wife and two children who are almost destitute in their home. Mrs. Thompson declared that she knew nothing of her husband's whereabouts.

Champagne, in jail at Taunton, identified the screw driver found on the Colhart lawn, and evidently used to jimmy the window open, as one which Thompson was in the habit of carrying with him.

Sentiment in Attleboro is high against the man, and at the funeral of Mrs. Colhart, indignant expressions were heard on all sides. Should the murderer be found by many of the citizens, so enraged are the feelings of many of the men, that it is thought he would need police protection.

SHAKE-UP COMING IN RAILWAY MAIL

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Officials of the railway mail service are stirred greatly by the statement of Postmaster-General Burleson that he will reorganize the service from the top down. Various officials of the service who have been in easy ever since the election for the rank and file of the service throw its influence to the Democratic nominees for President and Vice-President. Mr. Burleson's statement was made when a delegation of New York Congressmen called on him to urge the naming of James T. Canfield of New York city as general superintendent. Canfield is a past president of the railway mail clerks' association.

PUTS AN END TO BACKACHE MAKES WEAK KIDNEYS STRONG

A Few Doses Give Relief, Helps Lifeless Organs Regain Health, Strength and Activity.

It is useless, dangerous and unnecessary to be tortured with the digging, twisting pains of backache and rheumatism, or suffer with disagreeable kidney and bladder disorders any longer.

The new discovery, Croxone, provides a remedy which every sufferer can now depend upon to promptly and surely relieve all such misery.

Croxone relieves these troubles because it quickly overcomes the cause of the disease. It soaks right into the stopped up, inactive kidneys, through the membranes and linings; cleans out the little filtering glands; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and makes the kidneys filter and sift from the blood all the waste and poisonous matter that clog the system and cause such troubles.

It does not matter whether you have but slight symptoms or the most chronic, aggravated case of kidney, bladder trouble, or rheumatism that it is possible to imagine, for the very principle of Croxone is such that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without result.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

CALL SISTER TO HELP KEEP POPE IN BED

ROME, April 23.—Though his bronchial and intestinal condition continues to improve, Pope Pius was slightly weaker today when Professor Marchiafava and Dr. Amici made their daily examinations.

Fearing the Pontiff would again disobey the physicians' orders for absolute repose, they arranged for his sister, Anna Sarto, to sit by his bedside all day. She is the only one, apparently, who has a soothing effect on the Pope, and he always obeys her suggestions.

Although he is considered convalescing, the Vatican admits that it is unlikely the Holy Father ever again will fully resume his pontifical duties.

BABY DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA

12 Union St., Westfield, Mass.—"My baby boy was but nine days old when a rash spread over his entire body which burned like fire. This took the form of pimples which filled with a watery matter and when these broke a crust formed. The baby was very ill-tempered. It proved to be the worst form of eczema. Even his mouth and gums were affected. He cried continually; the pain and loss of sleep made him lose in weight and I surely thought my baby would die.

"I used everything anyone suggested to me in the line of salves and washes, but nothing helped until I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. We made a warm soapy bath and used the Cuticura Ointment plentifully and that was the first peaceful sleep he had since the trouble began. In three days there was a vast improvement, and I only used two boxes of Cuticura Ointment with the Cuticura Soap before the cure was complete. There isn't a trace of the skin-tortured baby that he was, as I hope on using the Cuticura Soap for his head, and his skin is clean and soft." (Signed) Mrs. Kreiky, May 18, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

For Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it beneficial in soothing and healing.

Founder of the Roxbury Piano Storage Salesrooms. The man who has done more to keep down piano prices than any other dealer in Boston. The Largest Distributor of Pianos in America.

His Great Piano Sales

A Piano Sale here is always a sacrifice, always a bargain sale, always a mark-down sale. The very nature of business, as the public knows, is one of sacrifice. The business here is not conducted like the business of a regular Piano store down town, where they are expected to make a profit on each piano—where they get their profit DIRECTLY out of the sale of pianos. We don't let any piano leaf around on the floor of the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms—it comes in, in DUE TIME a Sacrifice tag is clapped on to it, be it high grade, low grade or middle grade, and it is sold to the first man or woman who wants it for the price marked on the tag—not a cent more or less. The selling price is made on the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms' "Expense percentage" basis, and is figured to let the accounts out clean and clear without regard to profit—so you can see easily by this statement how these sales must necessarily be sacrifices. Someone's loss is your gain.

The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

JOHNSON IN TY COBB WAR

GEORGIA "PEACH" SURE TO GET SHORT END

By RILEY.

It is believed in many quarters that Ban Johnson stands behind President Navin of Detroit in the stand he has taken in the Ty Cobb matter.

If that is true Cobb will sign with the acknowledgment that Navin and Jennings boss the Tiger team or he will find the ways have been well greased to slide the Georgia Demon down and out of baseball.

The strike which Cobb successfully pulled off against Johnson's ruling last year, suspending Cobb for his assault upon a spectator at the Yankee ball grounds, brought down upon Cobb the displeasure of the powers. If it is true that Johnson is back of Navin, the Cobb strike can be held responsible for the elimination temporary, at least, of the Georgia Terror from the national sport.

Johnson's Power is Absolute.

It is hardly possible that any American League magnate would dare take so decided a stand on so important a matter to the league as the loss of such a star as Cobb without first consulting Johnson. Johnson's power is so great that he could readily require the Detroit magnates to give Cobb $15,000. He could dig into the league's war fund, if necessary, to pay the price. If it were unadvisable to keep Cobb in Detroit, Johnson could readily arrange an exchange of players by which the Georgia slugger would be placed elsewhere and the Tigers would receive a valuable collection of ball players in trade. If Detroit rebelled against Johnson's dictum, the American League president could find plenty of ways to punish the Detroit magnates.

Johnson's policy encourages the engagement of as many of the good players as possible for his league, and advises the payment of large sums, if necessary, to get and keep these players in the game. This policy has given the American League the cream of the ball players who have been developed in recent years, and has kept them in Johnson's circuit. This is one of the reasons why Johnson's league is more successful, on the whole, than Lynch's.

If, then, Cobb—the greatest drawing card of them all—were allowed to drop out of the game, it is believed that Johnson must have endorsed Navin's stand, and that Cobb would be eliminated because he is considered too dangerous a troublemaker for the future good of the league. It is believed that Cobb would have gotten $15,000 easily but for these side issues in his case.

While baseball salaries have risen with leaps and jumps, along with the remarkable prosperity the game has enjoyed in recent years, the magnates regard with anxiety the growing tendency of players to "hold out" for sums of $5,000 a year or more. They say they cannot afford it. But they fear that the players may be able to compel them to pay.

They contend that while winning teams in large cities make immense profits, in proportion to the capital invested, losing teams—particularly in smaller cities—cannot afford such salaries without standing for actual deficits. They argue that the cities that are winners today are losers tomorrow, wherefore the winners must "lay up for the rainy days."

They point, too, to the large sums which must now be charged off daily on account of the capital invested in big, permanent baseball plants, which are hazardous investments located on very expensive real estate. They quote deficits in several big league club treasuries, some of them in the largest cities in the country.

So when Cobb tops the list of "holdouts" by demanding $15,000 a year, they consider his demand in the relation it bears to the salaries of other players. One of them says, for instance:

If Navin gives in and pays Cobb $15,000 a year, what is to prevent his fellow-players from going to the magnates and declaring: "We grant that Cobb is much greater than we are, and that he draws $15,000 a year because he draws such crowds that you can pay him this sum and make a good profit on his name and presence in the game. But we are half as good players as Cobb, at least, and we therefore demand $7,500 a year."

This is not a dream. It is very real, and apt to happen at any time. The players who would make that demand would surely be justified by the facts. They are fully half as good as Cobb—probably much better than half as good. Then how could their demands be logically disputed?

Fear the Power of a Strike.

Moreover, we may well believe that they might enforce their demands by a wholesale strike. We had an example of their power last Summer, when Cobb was suspended for a very flagrant attack upon a spectator in New York. The assault occurred in view of the crowd at a league game. It was something that could not be tolerated by a magnate if baseball is to retain its popularity and the respect of the people. Regardless of what provoked the assault, and regardless of Cobb's great value and popularity as a ball player, a hard-and-fast rule had to be enforced, or the league would be in the position of ignoring its own rules against rowdyism and defying public law and common decency, as well.

Now, what happened? Instead of concurring in the enforcement of a rule that is one of the most important in insuring baseball and its players the respect of the people, when Johnson suspended Cobb for a few days, the entire Detroit team struck and refused to play ball. A make-shift team was put into the game, but that could not be continued without actually dropping Detroit out of the circuit in midseason. Such a calamity would have demoralized the American League. It would have made a farce of last year's pennant race. It threatened the popularity and even the existence of the league.

Johnson had to give in to the Detroit team. While custom and the tyrannical rules popularly supposed to govern the league called for heavy penalties and the possible blacklisting of the strikers, no penalties at all were imposed. Cobb and his team-mates were taken back, as if nothing had happened.

This was a great moral victory for Cobb. And it showed the players how completely they could hold up the league.

Wisdom would lead a prudent president to guard against such contingencies in future. When Cobb refused to sign a contract calling for the old salary, $10,000, the show was on the other foot. Johnson and Navin now have the advantage over Cobb. They can now refuse to accept his signature under any circumstances. No blacklist is necessary. He is a man without a contract to play anywhere. No court can force either Detroit or any other club to hire him, regardless of what construction the courts might place on big league rules and customs. And no big league club would dare hire him, under the circumstances, even if there were no rules covering the case. Because—if for no other reason—the magnates so defying the rules would know that—laws or courts to the contrary—he could be frozen out of baseball.

When Cobb was under contract he had an advantage. Now he is not under contract, and his baseball future depends solely upon his old boss and Ban Johnson, qualified, perhaps, by what effect public opinion may have.

You see, there is more in it than the mere matter of Cobb's demand for $15,000, or the question whether any player should be paid $15,000. In support of the belief that Navin and probably Johnson, were prepared last Fall to get along without Cobb this year—long before Ty Cobb had intimated that he would demand a huge increase in salary, Navin himself made a significant remark during the world's series, which is published now for the first time. He said:

We don't expect to do much in Detroit next year. It is possible that we will finish far down the list. We may be a bit unpopular the way we run our club, but the attendance could not very well be much less than it is, and I am convinced that after next year we will do better. We expect something radical, but we will take a chance. We are confident that we will come out all right.

Navin supplemented this from time to time during the Winter with public statements, in which he announced his belief that Detroit would make a poor showing this year, but might be expected to "come back" next season or the year following.

Battling Nelson to Meet Gallant at Arena Club

By JACK CONWAY

OSCAR BATTLING MATHEW NELSON, the famous citizen of Hogewisch, Ill., who was recently knocked through the ropes by "Kid" Dan Cupid, will be in our midst next Tuesday evening. The Battler is scheduled to meet Gilbert Gallant in a twelve-round bout at the opening show of the new Arena A. A.

Nelson fought Bay Wood at New Bedford last Saturday and got a draw with the hard hitting Fall River lightweight.

Gallant is well known to local "fans." He is a two handed fighter and should make things interesting for the former lightweight champion. An eight-round semi-final and two six-round preliminaries will be arranged today.

* * *

THERE will be an amateur boxing tournament at the Riverside Boat Club this evening. Besides the bouts in the open classes there will be two special contests. Donahue will meet Deehler, while Tommy Regan will try and lower the colors of Petey Green. The bout between Regan and Green has aroused a great deal of interest and should be crowded with action.

THE amateur mitt wielders are now preparing for the national boxing championships which will be held in this city on May 6 and May 7. A record breaking number of entries is expected by George V. Brown of the B. A. A., who has charge of the tourney. The winners of the big amateur show which the New York A. C. is going to hold on April 29, will be rewarded by a trip to the national championships.

* * *

JOE EAGAN, the South Boston lightweight, is in big demand by boxing promoters since he defeated "Young" McDonough in Lowell. Eagan has received an offer to clash with Matty Baldwin before the boxing club in Manchester, N. H. Jim Crilley of Lawrence would also like to secure Eagan to meet Steve Kennedy at his club on May 8 while Dean Elwell of the Lenox A. C. of Gloucester is eager to sign the Peabodyite bad for a bout at his organization.

HARVARD CUBS HAVE STRONG TRACK SQUAD

By J. O. JOHNSTONE.
Champion High Jumper of the United States and Canada.

Dudley Ranney, who has charge of the Harvard freshman track squad, has his team well sized up. He expects a lot from the freshmen and hopes to defeat their three rivals, Exeter Academy, May 3; Andover Academy, May 11; and the Yale freshmen, May 18.

There are eighteen men on the team who are likely point winners in the meets.

Many Good Sprinters.

Redline and Mahan in the sprints will be hard to beat. "Eddie" Mahan showed his speed when he won third place from scratch on a poor track last Saturday. In the North End Park games, while Rollins made some fine performances indoors, winning third place in the New England championships in the 300 yards, Delefield, Wheeler and Pennypacker are the best performers in the 440.

Bingham and Lamont will take care of the half-mile event and should win first and second in all the meets, while Fuller and Fullerton will be seen in the mile run.

There is at least one good weight man in Cowen, the former Worcester Academy boy, and a graduate of the Cambridge Latin School.

Richards and Haydock Stars.

Richards and Haydock will have a battle-royal in the pole vault.

There are several out for the broad and high jumps. Among these are Hodgson, W. Rollins, Garvey, Coolidge and Johnstone.

Shoes Too Tight So Star Pitcher Quits High School Team

NEW YORK, April 23.—Harry Blodgett has quit and left the High School of Commerce baseball team mourning for its star pitcher, because the shoes provided him by the school did not fit. His failure to appear for duty in the Mackenzie School game last Saturday gave his mates their first inkling that something was amiss with the illustrious one. Questioned as to his default Blodgett opined that a tight pair of shoes constituted good and sufficient cause. Blodgett is a big, easy going fellow, but he has a high regard for his all important feet and is very touchy about them.

WOOD MAY BE OUT OF GAME FOR A MONTH

WASHINGTON, April 23. — "Smoky Joe" Wood, Boston's champion pitcher, may be out of the game for three weeks or a month.

He will certainly be unable to play this week. The injury to his thumb, while not serious, is of such a nature, however, that if he tries to use his pitching hand before it is healed his twirling may be affected all season, to the great loss of the world's champions.

This discovery was made today by a surgeon, who examined Wood. While Joe's thumb is only helpless from a bad sprain, it is believed that the injury is almost as bad as if the member had been broken. A Washington physician examined Wood's thumb at his hotel today and then told him to nurse it along until the pain from pressure had entirely disappeared.

Manager Stahl said after the examination that there is no need of hurrying Joe back into the game and taking any chances of injuring him permanently. "He will be strictly all right," said Stahl, "when he goes back in the game and I only regret we will not be able to use him against Johnson as I know that would be a double attraction for the Washington "fans."

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The world's champion Red Sox were out to make it two straight wins over the Washington Senators here today. Stahl's men were elated by their victory yesterday and are confident that they will experience better luck from now on.

Manager Griffith has decided to work Walter Johnson this afternoon as he wants to make sure of at least one game against the Red Sox and then have the Coffeyville boy ready for Saturday's battle in Philadelphia. Walter is in great shape and will make the Red Sox pay exceptional ball to come out on top.

Manager Stahl said he would work either Collins or Hall, with the chances favoring the former.

Manager Stahl is pulling for the Nationals to finish high and admits that Griffith and Griff "has got a smart ag-ency."

"Washington deserves a good ball club and I am sure the patrons will turn out in large numbers throughout the season. They stuck to the old club when I was at the head of it, but I had rotten luck in the aggregation that is playing here now. The team works nicely together and we have always found it a hard nut to crack."

The chances of Tom Drohan the Newark terror, and Elliott Deal, the Newark hurler, to land regular berths on the Washington twirling corps will be decided within a few days. The two lads are known as warm weather pitchers.

"Dutch" Leonard's masterly pitching enabled the Red Sox to defeat the Senators yesterday by a score of 8 to 3. The big southpaw pitched a fine game and did his best work in the pinches. A great deal of his success was due to the fine coaching that he received from the veteran, Bill Carrigan, who was on the receiving end of the battery.

Harry Hooper and Steve Yerkes starred with the bat. Hooper got two singles and a double out of four times at the plate, while Yerkes' one hit came with three on and cleaned up the bases.

Report Cobb Ready to Sign With Tigers for $12,500 Salary

DETROIT Mich., April 23.—When Ty Cobb, the Tiger slugger, reaches here Thursday from his Augusta, Ga., home, which he left last night, he will sign a contract that calls for a straight salary of $12,500 and bonuses.

This was the information that came today from a person close to the Detroit management, and who is said to be thoroughly conversant with the dickering that has been going on between Cobb and President Navin in the past few days.

The $12,500 salary is Navin's original offer. Cobb demanded $15,000. The bonuses, if earned, will give Cobb additional money for all hits, stolen bases and runs over a certain total, and will make his income approximately $13,000.

Drimore Captures City and Suburban Handicap at Epsom

EPSOM, Eng., April 23.—The Copthorne plate value $1,000, was won here today by Mateiot. Ambush was second and Starter third.

Barden won the Betchworth selling plate, value $1,000, with Marco Prunella second, and Constance third. The Ladworth plate, value $1,000, was won by Neville Holt. Cup can second and Wynburg third.

The City and Suburban Handicap, one of the big classics of the season, was won by Drimore over a 1½ mile course. The race is worth $10,000 to the winner. Loose run second and Lorenzo third.

The betting in the City and Suburban was 10 to 1 on Drimore, 100 to 7 on Loose and 15 to 1 on Lorenzo.

The Hyde Park plate, $1,000, was won by Elgeo. Gold Vein ran second, Dempona third.

Paddy Green Goes Back to Holyoke to be "Seasoned"

HOLYOKE, Mass., April 23.—Owner Haldon of the Holyoke baseball club of the Eastern League, formerly known as the Connecticut League, has purchased Paddy Green last year with the Holyoke club, from Barney Dreyfus of the Pittsburg Pirates on an optional agreement.

Green was sold by Holyoke last year to the New York Highlanders and trained with them in Bermuda. He was then sent to the Pittsburg team by Manager Chance. In a letter written to Manager Haldon, Dreyfus gives as his reason for sending Green back to the minors that Green needs another year of seasoning. This is Green's second year in organized baseball.

BONNER WINS BOUT.

EASTON, Pa., April 23.—Jimmy Bonner of Summit Hill, knocked out Jimmy Greenwood of New Bedford Mass., in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-round bout here last night. A foul to the point of the chin ended the fight.

The figures from England and France for 1912 are not as yet available, but no startling change will be seen when they are published.

C. O. Sacks, president and treasurer of the Rowland Advertising Agency of New York, has accepted the position of advertising manager for Gray & Davis of Boston. Mr. Sacks will take up his new duties about the first of July and will establish his headquarters in the new Gray & Davis plant at Cambridge.

The condition of the roadway in front of the United States Tire building, Commonwealth avenue and Beacon street, well merits the attention of the Street Department. Beacon street, between Park square and Fremont street, is full of holes and should be repaired immediately.

C. P. Henderson of the Henderson Company of Indianapolis is spending a few days in New England as the guest of J. A. Blunay, the local agent. Mr. Henderson says Indianapolis has almost entirely recovered from the flood and the plants are now working overtime.

A. H. Sowers has secured the services of Charlie Basle, the famous racing driver, who will assume charge of the assembling plant of the Sowers truck.

"We have met the enemy and we are theirs" is the laconic message George Stallings may have sent today to Jim Gaffney, the esteemed owner of the esteemed ball club that George Stallings bosses. The enemy, of course, refers to our neighbors in the National League substructure, Brooklyn—of course.

By grace of some freak or other, Brooklyn succeeded in winning two and losing only four games before coming over to see us. In the meantime, we had won one and lost only five games before Brooklyn arrived. Naturally it was a case of dog eat dog after Brooklyn got here. Under the rules of baseball, Brooklyn and Boston were forced to the issue of parting company, unless they could frame up a series of ties games. So we parted. That is, THEY parted. We are still where we were.

If Brooklyn wins again this afternoon, Roberts' team will have as many victories as defeats. Which is a whole lot for Brooklyn. By beating us yesterday, the Dodgers climbed above the Cardinals into fifth place, which is SOME place for Brooklyn.

As for us, we are twice removed from Brooklyn, the Cardinals separating us. But we are still seventh in the list, thus fulfilling Stallings' promise to pull us out of the last place above minor league. We hold this very exalted and honorable position by virtue of the fact that Cincinnati has played one more game than we have. If we were pessimistic, we might prophesy that any day it rains hard enough where Cincinnati plays, we will be right there, side by side with the Reds, and George Stallings and Joe Tinker can hold hands in a genuine expression of fraternal regard and affection.

Yesterday it was "Hub" Perdue's turn to deliver. Somebody has to show up every day, and it was the mighty Hubbard Squash who detonated this time. The Dodgers, who hadn't connected with a good, old-fashioned curve ball this season, had to come over here to find what one looked like. Perdue served them up and, after looking them over, the Dodgers whaled them "where they ain't," to the tune of fourteen safe hits in seven innings—three of them doubles.

It was healthy, wallop, wallop all the afternoon. Eight runs were scored, two and two-thirds as many as the Giants tallied off Perdue in two games together. Another ironical circumstance was the appearance of Cliff Curtis as victor. This Curtis person used to pitch for the Pilgrims, and was permitted to go away from here because the Boston National Board of Strategy did not think he was good enough to remain. Whatever Curtis may have had then, plus what he has gathered since, he must have saved up to serve to us yesterday in revenge. Boston bit him seven times safely, four of their safeties being for two bases. But Curtis seemed to be taking life very hazardlessly all afternoon, and looked as if he could end the swatting whenever he chose.

Gervais and Whaling, a new battery from the coast, performed for Stallings in the last two innings and looked good. The Dodgers stole but four bases yesterday—one-half as many as the Giants were accustomed to get away with while they were here. But too much is enough; and four are too much.

Zbyszko---LeMarin In Near-Title Bout on Mat Tonight

CHICAGO, April 23.—Devotees of the wrestling game are anxiously waiting for the start of the bout between Zbyszko, the Pole, and Le Marin at the Coliseum tonight.

The Pole has been training in public for the past week or more and those who have seen him at work think he has a good chance of winning over LeMarin.

If the latter does win, it will come as a distinct surprise to Manager Jack Herman, who has Zbyszko in charge. Herman feels confident that the Pole will win and is trying to schedule a bout between Zbyszko and Frank Gotch. It is said he offered Gotch $17,000 for a match, lose, win or draw.

HARVARD IS WINNER.

Harvard won its first home game of the season by defeating Bowdoin by the score of 6 to 4 at Soldiers Field yesterday afternoon.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

LEFTY LOUEY and the Moose comprised the battery for Boston in the last two innings at the South End grounds. To put it in another way, the battery was Gervais Lewis and Albert Whaling. On the Southern training trip their teammates dubbed one "Lefty Louey" and the other the "Moose." They played with the Northwestern League last year, Gervais pitching for Vancouver and Whaling catching for Seattle. It was Big Bill James as pitcher and Whaling as catcher that won the pennant for the Seattle club. We should like to see James and Whaling work a game together in Boston and doubtless Manager Stallings will get around to it in due time.

IN the meantime Whaling looked mighty good behind the bat. There are five Northwestern League players wearing the Pilgrims' outfit this season. Four of them—that is, all but Whaling—say that Whaling is a regular bull moose as a catcher. He is tender as being one of the best throwers to bases in the business. He has been able to peg accurately to all the bags, while last year he was known as good all the time; he is full of pep and he keeps his own team stirred up from the time the first ball is pitched until the game is won or lost. This is the reputation his last year's league mates give him.

GERVAIS got through the eighth inning in fine style, and the crowd gave him the hand. Two of the men who faced him beat out infield grounders and the third struck out. In the ninth, however, the Brooklyns found him for a solid single and a solid double and scored a run. Gervais is a left hander and is a great fielding pitcher.

IN the Southern country especially in the sparsely settled districts—when a pedler stops at the front gate, those on the premises say, when they do not care to buy, "Ain't nothing," and the pedler moves on without further parley. Hon Squash Perdue must have used the same words to the Brooklyn baseball scribes as they stepped to the gate.

The foregoing sentiments are somewhat invented, the writer finds after reading them over. What he intends to say was that Hub didn't have anything. Bell players will understand this, if the public doesn't. However, Hub pitched a couple of gilt-edged games of ball before the stomp came. He won the first and should have won the second.

THOMAS STEVENS RICE carries the responsibilities of the entire Brooklyn press on his shoulders on this trip of the Brooklyn club. Mr. Rice writes interesting baseball articles for the Brooklyn Eagle and is the only newspaper man with the team. He used to work in Washington and when the Federal Express rumbled by the grounds, while the game was on, he remarked that he wished he was on it.

PRESIDENT CHARLES H. EBBETS of the Brooklyn club, is here with the team. He seldom misses a trip to Boston as he always figures his team will win more games here than it loses. But he has been badly fooled on several occasions in the past. We may fool him on this trip, too.

"GILDED JOHN" TITUS has so far recovered from his recent illness that he was able to pinch hit in the seventh. He pinched for Perdue and drove a fly to right.

WITHIN THE LAW

By MARVIN DANA from the Play of BAYARD VEILLER

A DRAMATIC MOMENT FROM "WITHIN THE LAW"

"Three years isn't forever. There won't be a day or an hour when I won't remember that at last it was your word that sent me to prison."

When I come out you are going to pay for every moment of them.

PART I.

[illegible] sun's last rays had stirred at the [illegible] of light on the wall. Just at the [illegible] the act of seeing made not the least impression on her numbed brain. For a long time she continued to regard the dim illumination on the wall with the same passive gaze. Vaguely, it still [illegible] when her eyes [illegible] gaze and rested on it gratefully, as [illegible] fearful lest she [illegible] to the [illegible] her plight. In a [illegible] consciousness [illegible] she was staring to hold on to the [illegible] of sensation, thus to win a little respite from the torture that had exhausted her soul.

Of a sudden, her eyes noted the black lines that lay across the panel of light. And in that instant her spirit was quickened once again. The clouds lifted from her brain. Vision was clear now. Under standing seized the full import of the hideous thing on which she looked. . . . For the panel of light was a window, set bars within a wall of stone. The rigid lines of black that crossed it were barred iron bars. It was a cell in [illegible] She was in a cell of the Tombs.

Tingling, [illegible] mercifully on that one bed maintained her fixed watch of the window—that window which was a symbol of her utter despair. Again agony wrenched within her. She did not weep long ago she had exhausted the relief of tears. She did not pace to and fro in the comfort of physical movement with which the caged beast finds a measure [illegible] liberty. She [illegible] but [illegible] and [illegible] her under stress of anguish. Now, she was well-nigh incapable of any bodily activity. There [illegible] as much as the [illegible] from her lips. The torment was far too racking for such futile fashion of [illegible]. She merely sat there in a [illegible] of [illegible] To all outward seeming [illegible] emotionless an object [illegible]. Even the eyes, which held so finely their gaze on the window, were quite expressionless. Over them lay a film [illegible] which veils the eyes of some dead thing. Only an occasional languid [illegible] of the lids revealed the life that remained.

Fury Raged in Soul

So still the body. Within the soul, fury raged unconfined. For all the desolate calm of outer seeming, the tragedy of her fate was being acted with frightful vividness there in memory. In that dreadful remembrance, her spirit was rent asunder anew by realization of that which had become her portion. . . . It was then, as once again the horrible injustice of her fate racked consciousness with its tortures, that the seeds of revolt were [illegible] in her heart. The thought of revenge gave to her the first meager gleam of comfort that had lighted ened her moods through many miserable days and nights. Those seeds of revolt were left to harvest well, were to grow into their [illegible] a poison flower, developed [illegible] the three years of convict life to which the judge had sentenced her.

In [illegible] was appalled by the mercilessness of a destiny that had so outraged [illegible]. She was wholly innocent of having done any wrong. She had struggled through years of privation to keep herself clean and wholesome, worthy of [illegible] gentlefolk from whom she drew her blood. And earnest effort had ended at last under an overwhelming accusation [illegible] yet none the less fatal to her. This accusation, after soul-searching delays, had culminated today in conviction. The sentence of the court had been imposed upon her: that for three years she should be imprisoned. . . . This despite her innocence. She had endured much—miserably much—for honesty's sake. There wrought the irony of fate she had endured bravely for honesty's sake. And the end of it all was shame unutterable. There was nought left her save a wild dream of revenge against the world that had martyrized her. "Vengeance is mine. I will repay, saith the Lord" . . . The admonition could not touch her now. Why should she care for the decrees of a God who had abandoned her?

There had been nothing in the life of Mary Turner before the catastrophe came to distinguish it from many another. Its most significant details were of a sordid kind, familiar to poverty. Her father had been an unsuccessful man, as success is esteemed by this generation of Mammon worshipers. He was a gentleman, but the trivial fact is of small avail to-day. He was of good birth, and he was the possessor of an inherited competence. He had, as well, intelligence, but it was not of a financial sort.

Character Only Legacy

So little by little, his fortune became shrunken toward nothingness by reason of injudicious investments. He married a charming woman who, after a brief period of wedded happiness gave [illegible] to the birth of the single child of the union, Mary. Afterward, in his distress over this loss, Ray Turner seemed even more incompetent for [illegible] movement of business affairs. As the years passed, the daughter grew toward maturity in an experience of ever-increasing penury. Nevertheless, there was no actual want of the necessities of life, though always a woful lack of its elegancies. The girl was in the [illegible] school, [illegible] father finally gave over his [illegible] for [illegible] of living. Between [illegible] and [illegible], the intimacy had been unusually close. —At his death, the father left her a character well instructed in the excellent principles that had been his own. That was his sole legacy to her. Of worldly goods, not the value of a pin.

Yet, measured according to the stern standards of adversity, Mary was fortunate. Almost at once she procured a humble [illegible] in the Emporium the great department store owned by Edward Sadler. To be sure the wage was [illegible] while the toil was body breaking and [illegible]. Still, the pittance could be made to sustain life and Mary was blessed with both soul and body to sustain [illegible]. So she merged herself in the army of workers—in the [illegible] of those that give their entire selves to a labor most stern and [illegible], a [illegible] rewarded.

Mary nevertheless avoided the worst perils of her lot. She did not flinch under privation, but went her way through it, if not serenely, at least without even a thought of yielding to those temptations that beset a girl who is at once poor and charming. Fortunately for her, those in closest authority over her were not so deeply smitten as to make obligatory on her a choice between complaisance and loss of position. Such a [illegible] of situations like that, the cul-de-sac of chastity, worse than any devised by a Jarvey, in the store, such things were matters of course. There is little innocence for the girl in the modern city. There can be none for the worker thrown into the storm centers of a great commercial activity, humming with vicious gossip, all alive with quips from the worldly wise.

Five Dreary Years

At the very outset of her employment, the sixteen-year-old girl learned that she might eke out the six dollars weekly by trading on her personal attractiveness to those of the opposite sex. The idea was repugnant to her; not only from the maidenly instinct of purity, but also from the moral principles woven into her character by the teachings of a father wise in most things, though a fool in finance. Thus, she remained unmirched, though well informed as to the verities of life, she preferred purity and penury, rather than a flight payment of her body to be bought by its degradation.

Among her fellows were some like herself; others, unlike. Of her own sort, in the [illegible] particular, were the two girls with whom she shared a [illegible] room. Their common decency of attitude toward the other sex was the unique bond of union in their association, she found to real companionship. Nevertheless, they were wholesome enough. Otherwise they were it iterate altogether unnatural.

In such wise, through five dreary years, Mary Turner lived. Nine hours daily, she stood behind a counter. She spent her other waking hours in obligatory menial labors, washing her own scant means over the gas; washing and ironing, for the sake of that neat appearance which was required of her by those in authority at the Emporium—yet, more especially, necessary for her own self-respect. With a mind keen and earnest, she contrived some sort of [illegible] reading and studying since the free [illegible] afforded her this opportunity. So though engaged in an [illegible] [illegible] through most of her hours, she was able to find food for mental growth. Even, in the [illegible] she [illegible] a point of [illegible] and [illegible] she began to study out [illegible] position in the world's economy, to meditate on a method of betterment. Under this impulse, hope [illegible] high in her breast. Ambition was born. By candid comparison of herself with others about her, she realized the fact [illegible] possessed an intelligence beyond the average. The training in her father, too, had been of a superior kind. There was as well, at the back [illegible] the feeling of particular self-respect that [illegible] worthily to the measure of good blood. Finally, she [illegible] enjoyed a modest appreciation of her own physical advantages; in short she had beauty, brains and breeding. Three things of chief importance to any woman—though there be many minds as to which may be chief among the three.

I have said nothing specific thus far as to the outer being of Mary Turner—except as to flimsy eyes and a huddled form. But, in a happier situation, the girl would have been enough. She was one of those that possess an harmonious [illegible] body, the peculiar charm that springs from the mind, with the added grace born of the spirit. And [illegible] in fact, a flame of revolt [illegible] on the bed in the Tombs cell, it would have required a most analytical observer to determine the actualities of her loveliness. Her form was disguised by the [illegible] of starvation. Her eyes [illegible] showed the pallor of sorrowful [illegible]. Her face was no more than a mask of misery. Yet, the shrewd observer, if a lover of beauty, might have found much for delight, even despite the concealment imposed by her present condition. Thus, the stormy glory of her dark hair, great masses that run a riot of shining ripple and waves. And the straight line of the nose, not too thin, yet fine enough for the rapture of a Praxiteles. And the pink dainti[illegible] of [illegible] ear-tips, which peered warmly from beneath the pall of tresses. One could know nothing accurately of the complexion now. But it were easy to guess that in happier places it would show of a purity to entice, with a gentle blooming of roses in the cheeks. Even in the hour of unmitigated evil, the lips revealed a curving beauty of red—not quite crimson, though near enough for the word; not quite scarlet either; only, a red gently enchanting, which turned one's thoughts toward tenderness—with a hint of desire. It was, too, a generous mouth, not too large; still, happily, not as small as those modeled by Watteau. It was a, together wholesome—there, it was generous and true, desirable for kisses—yes!—more desirable for strength and for faith.

Like every intelligent woman, Mary had taken the trouble to reinforce [illegible] worth of her physical attractiveness. The instinct of sex was strong in her, as it must be in every normal woman, after that appeal is nature's law. She kept herself supple and svelte by many exercises, at which her companions in the chamber scoffed, with the prudent warning that more work must mean more appetite. With arms still aching from the lifting of heavy bolts of cloth to and fro from the shelves, she nevertheless was at pains nightly to brush with the approved two hundred strokes the thick masses of her hair. Even here, in the sordid desolation of the cell, the lustrous sheen witnessed the fidelity of her care. So, in each detail of her, the keen observer might have found adequate reason for admiration. There was the delicacy of the hands, with fingers tapering, with nails perfect, shaped, neither too dull nor too shining. And there were, too, finally, the trimly shod feet, set rather primly on the floor, small, and arched like those of a Spanish infanta. In truth, Mary Turner showed the possibilities at least, if not just now the realities, of a very beautiful woman.

Naturally, in this period of grief, the girl's mind had no concern with such external merits over which once she had modestly exulted. All her present energies were set to precise recollection of the [illegible] experience into which she had been thrust.

In its outline the event had been tragically simple.

[illegible] had been thefts in the store [illegible] been traced eventually to a [illegible] assistant, that in which Mary [illegible] the detective was alert. Some [illegible] shoes were missed. Search followed. Surveillance. The goods were found in Mary's locker. That was enough. She was charged with the theft. She protested innocence—only to be laughed at in derision by her accusers. Every thief declares innocence. Mr. Glider himself was emphatic against her. The thieving had been long continued. An example must be made. The girl was arrested.

The crowded condition of the court calendar kept her for three months in the Tombs, awaiting trial. She was quite friendless. To the world, she was only a thief in duress. At the last, the trial was very short. Her lawyer was merely an unfledged practitioner assigned to her defence as a formality of the court. This novice in his profession was so grateful for the first recognition ever afforded him that he rather assisted than otherwise in the District Attorney in the prosecution of the case.

At the end, twelve good men and true rendered a verdict of guilty against the maundering girl in the prisoner's dock. So simple the history of Mary Turner's trial.

The sentence of the judge was lenient—only three years.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Five Great Books With One Coupon

It is the desire of the Boston AMERICAN to place a set of Everybody's Cyclopedia in the home of every one of its readers.

Everybody's Cyclopedia consists of five volumes, bound in English cloth, and contains all the information to be found in similar books of reference. In addition thereto is a treasury of facts and figures showing numerous subjects never before treated in a similar work. Then there is a chronological table and universal history, which shows the important epochs and events in the annals of the world from the very beginning of history.

The entire work is profusely illustrated with accurately drawn text pictures, magnificent color plates and monotones, which show the wonderful progress in architecture and invention.

All of this is in addition to the usual cyclopedic features. Millions of dollars are used in expanding expensive and cumbersome sets that usually sell on the instalment plan at from $50 to $100 a set.

"WITCHCRAFT"

A COMMON enough court trial, even in these, our enlightened times.

THE ROBED JUSTICE, a much injured, woeful and wrathful young man whom anybody can see has been conjured "scandalous"; bewitched into light-headedness; circed into following will-o'-the-wisps; spell-bound by an enchanting eye.

THE OFFENDER, a soft, sweet creature—perhaps the saving, busy girl who hikes out gallantly to a shop or an office desk every morning, blue-skied or rainy—perhaps the little aristocrat who labors at riding in the Fenway o' mornings and serving tea afternoons in a boudoir whose amphora vases three peach trees were flayed of their pinky blossoms to fill. Anyway, it's a creature that anybody can see is a WITCH from the last feathery curl on the crown of her head to the strap of her broidered slipper.

THE COUNSEL FOR THE DEFENCE, a small fat person with a powerful tongue and eloquent eyes; with white wings that are found sometimes to be slightly singed, who ALWAYS wins his case. He never proves that his client isn't a witch—that isn't it—but he always gets a light sentence — Oh! kisses or something like that. A thousand or so.

Letters to Girls

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

NUMBER TWO

To a School Girl:

You tell me you hate Latin, and ask me if I think you should spend so much time on a dead language when there is not time enough for all the things you long to study.

My ideas of education for girls do not coincide with that of many people.

Had I a daughter, I should begin to make her a linguist as soon as she could talk; and her schools would be selected for that purpose in the main.

It is all very well to say we can travel the world over with only the English language in our brains and on our brains and on our tongue's end; but I assure you, my dear girl, travel is intensified in pleasure and profit ten per cent. by every language, we know.

Besides this, familiarity with other languages gives a woman numberless opportunities for enjoyment, for usefulness and for shining as a planet among stars.

If you are looking forward to a social career, nothing can be more valuable to you than acquaintance with languages; and if you are expecting to be self-supporting you will find a linguist who reads and writes five languages beside English has many more desirable chances for filling a good salary than one who knows only English.

Therefore, I would advise you to apply yourself to your Latin earnestly; and then it will be less of a labor to acquire the French, Spanish, Italian and German—one or all of them. But unless you mean to study some language I see no benefit in your giving time to Latin.

Be thorough in English and study its poetics.

Do not be stilted, or pedantic; but no matter what sort of slang-did courseness our associates may indulge in and think it "smart," in the American way of applying that word, avoid all loose and loppy language, as you would avoid soiled clothing.

The rarity of good English (or good American), among our high school and college graduates is shocking and humiliating to one who takes pride in being an American.

The rarity of well placed voices is quaily shocking and ear-bruising.

An important part of your education should be in learning how to use your vocal organs in speaking.

It is being taught by specialists today; and you should consider it an imperative duty to begin now in this course.

Find time Saturday, each week, if you have no other free hour, and get the rudiments of voice placing, before you form bad habits of speaking with a nasal, or a throaty, or a heady voice.

An agreeable speaking voice is one of the greatest charms you can cultivate.

In your association with other girls you would feel deeply hurt if any one accused you of being common in your loves or actions. Then avoid the commonest qualities possible in a human being—jealousies and gossip.

Teach yourself to praise freely and criticize rarely; and when you have a criticism to make, make it only to one whom you feel can be helped by your words to overcome a fault—never behind the back of the offender.

Learn to sympathize with your schoolmates in their trials, but also learn what is harder still: to rejoice with them when they surpass you in any achievements, or win any prizes for which you may be seeking.

Root out envy and jealousy from your nature, and know in so doing you will make yourself more lovable and more admired than by attaining the highest school honors.

Character building is a greater work than brain building.

Be ready to share your best friends with others, and do not be one of those exacting and unreasonable girls who wants no one to love or be loved by her friends but herself.

In every community and school such types are common, and it always savors of pettyness and lack of broad and noble qualities. Just as each flower in the garden has its place, so each friend and acquaintance has a place; and no one should crowd another.

Be helpful wherever you can, and be appreciative of the hard work your teachers have done and are doing to fill their positions. Teaching is one of the most trying and nerve-taxing of occupations; and if you show consideration, affection and courtesy to your teachers it helps to lessen their troubles and gives zest to their labors.

Even as a pupil, remember, you have something to give as well as something to receive.

Hunting a Husband

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

WHEN Beatrice Minor and Robert Maynard were seated in the pleasant living-room, there was a moment of awkward silence, broken by Beatrice, who asked:

"Have you been well since you left Pleasanton? I have heard of you occasionally through Mrs. Robbins."

"Yes," replied the man, "very well, and happier than I deserve to be."

He stopped, blushing confusedly, then, with an effort, continued:

"That leads me to my reason for being here this afternoon, Mrs. Minor. I owe you an apology. When I last saw you I was under the influence of liquor."

Beatrice felt her own face flush with embarrassment, but she waited.

"I was unhappy," the man hurried on. "There is no denying the fact that, although I had become engaged to a dear girl, I was fascinated by you."

"Please! Mr. Maynard!" protested the widow, shocked.

"Don't stop me!" he continued. "I am sober now, so let me eat the humble pie that is my portion, and that I must eat if I would be comfortable in my own mind. Yes—I was very much taken with you. You must know that you have a manner that attracts any man to whom you choose to be kind. And I was honored by being one of these for a while."

He Eats Humble Pie

"Surely," objected Beatrice, "you do not mean to intimate that I tried to attract you, or that I tried to make you pay attention to me!"

"On the contrary," declared Robert Maynard, "the fact that at times you seemed to avoid me piqued and irritated me. You know, men always want that which is beyond their reach. So I made a fool of myself."

"By admiring me, you mean?" queried his companion. "You are hardly complimentary."

She smiled as she spoke, but there was a hint of acerbity in her tone, and the man was conscious of it.

"Ah," he begged, "dear Mrs. Minor, don't misunderstand me! And please hear me out! I want to make a clean breast of the matter.

"I thought myself in love with you I was lonely, and when you discouraged my attentions I was angry. Then I met Miss Dameral frequently. You know how lovely she is. I asked her to marry me She accepted me.

"Then she went away to the country and I was left without the charm of her presence, and suddenly I found myself caring a great deal about you. I saw that you were tired of me, that you doubted me, that you disapproved of me. And one day when I was unhappy I took more liquor than I should have taken—and I called on you and said many things for which I now apologize. Will you pardon me?"

Beatrice thought quickly, but there was no perceptible pause before she replied: "Certainly, I pardon you. And I am more than willing to forget it. Moreover, I consider that the matter now is none of my business."

"Because I am engaged to be married, you mean?" he asked. "Well, let me explain that I found, when I went to the mountains where Miss Dameral was staying, that, after all, she was the one woman in the world for me. Then I was heartily ashamed of my behavior while away from her."

Beatrice's sense of humor asserted itself, but she repressed it. The words:

"How happy could I be with either
"Were t'other dear charmer away!"

said themselves over in her mind, but she did not allow them to rise to her lips. Instead, she gave heed to what her companion was saying.

His Diplomacy

"We are to be married in ten days, you know," he went on, "and, of course, my dear little girl wanted to send you cards for the wedding, but I asked her to wait, for I wanted to make my peace with you first."

"You did not tell her that, did you?" asked Beatrice, abruptly.

"Oh, no, indeed!" Maynard replied. "I told her it would be best to wait until I could learn from Mrs. Robbins where you were. So I wrote and asked her."

"We came into town last week," said Beatrice, to fill in the sudden pause that followed his speech. "Please accept my hearty congratulations on your happiness."

She had stopped thinking of this man and his affairs, and was wishing she dared ask him about his brother. But she was afraid to trust her voice. As if in reply to her thought Robert Maynard spoke suddenly.

"I was shocked to hear of your misfortune by fire, and of the accident to poor Paul," he said, heedless of the expression of pain that swept across his listener's face. He was one of the men who like to impart news, and he had come to tell. "It was strange that this accident should have happened to my brother just when it did. For on that very morning he had received the news that his wife was dead."

"Paul's Wife Is Dead"

"Dead!" ejaculated Beatrice. "His wife?"

"Yes—I thought you probably had not heard of it. She led him a dance all right, neglecting his only child when it was a tiny baby, so that it died at less than a year of age. That woman made an inferno of his home when she was in it, and stayed away from it as much as she could.

"At last she ran away, without the shadow of an excuse. Poor old Paul waited until he was certain that there was no chance of ever saving her before he got a divorce from her. And in less than a fortnight after he got his divorce—in fact, just when he had completed the entire business—she dropped dead of heart disease out West somewhere. So—a merciful Providence freed him at last. Poor old chap! I hope he will have some happiness yet in his life before he dies!"

Beatrice tried to speak, but her tongue failed to do her bidding. Her hands and feet were like ice. The room seemed to swim before her eyes. The sound of the children's footsteps in the hall roused her from her stunned condition, but, before she could speak, Robert Maynard arose hastily.

"I must go!" he exclaimed. "I left a taxi waiting down below for me. Good day, Mrs. Minor! And thank you! And please come to the wedding!"

He shook her hand quickly, and, before she could find words in which to ask the question that trembled on her lips, he was gone.

TO MAKE AMENDS

A STORY is told of a Scottish magistrate who on rising one morning found that he had overslept himself, and had but a few minutes in which to keep a most important appointment. Making a hurried toilet, he rushed from the house and hailed a passing cab.

"Drive me," he said to the driver, "to the police court with all possible speed! On no account delay an instant!"

Faithful to his instructions, the driver urged his steed to its very utmost. Faster and faster they went until, after an exciting drive, he deposited his fare at his destination in time for the appointment, but not before he had damaged a passing vehicle in his mad career.

The magistrate, on alighting, handed him his fare, with the addition of a substantial tip, and then, to the man's astonishment, pressed thirty shillings into his hand, at the same time saying:

"Here's thirty shillings, my man; you will be brought before me tomorrow for furious driving, and I shall fine you that amount."

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES
Suffered Three Years. Used Resinol. Now Not a Pimple to Be Seen.
Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 27, 1912—"I had been troubled for the past three years with pimples which completely covered my face and neck. The pimples would come out faster up and cause me to pick at them, feeling very uncomfortable. I tried most all kinds of facial creams, but with no effect. I tried a sample of Resinol Soap and Ointment and noticed instant relief. I bought Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and began the treatment. After using two jars of Resinol Ointment and ...esinol Soap, there was not a pimple to be seen, and now my face is as smooth as if there was never a pimple on it." TODAYS STOCK MARKET

Prices were irregular in New York when that market opened. There was some selling pressure but enough demand in the room to keep the tone fairly steady in early trading. The weakness in New Haven made that road prominent. It declined 2¼ points within a few minutes. At the opening it dropped from 112 to 110. The Interstate Commerce Commission hearing is being keenly followed by Wall Street.

Among stocks to sustain early losses were Amalgamated, ⅛; American Can, ¼; Baltimore & Ohio, ⅛; Chesapeake & Ohio, ⅛; General Electric, ⅛; Missouri Pacific, ¼; U. S. Steel, ⅛; Union Pacific, ¼; Southern Pacific, ⅛; Pennsylvania, ⅛, and Northern Pacific, ⅛.

In addition to New Haven, strong pressure was directed against the international stocks.

The Curb was steady.

Americans in London advanced and then reacted.

The New York sub-treasury gained $142,000 from the banks yesterday and has gained $2,148,000 since Friday.

Termed "A Political Tragedy."

In States where Populism was strong and free silver favored, intervention in the Minnesota and other rates cases is not relished. Attorney-General Martin of Nebraska declares that the Wilson administration has repudiated the old-time Democratic doctrine of non-interference with State rights. He said:

"A great political tragedy was enacted at Washington. It is the irony of fate that the present administration has seemingly become the confidant of the railroad companies in their efforts to defeat State regulation of 2-cent carfares and thus destroy all of the progressive State rate legislation of the decade. If successful in its contention, the administration causes the States to lose their two-cent passenger and freight reduction laws and invites the reinstatement of the old rates.

"Seemingly the present Democratic administration breaks away from the party's old moorings and becomes the adversary of State's rights and the champion of concentrated power in the federal government."

Currency Legislation Soon.

There will be currency legislation during the present session of Congress. This is forecasted in a Washington dispatch saying: "Upon urgent suggestions from the White House, Representative Underwood, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, issued orders today for a rush passage through the House of the tariff bill, so that currency reform legislation could be taken up at the special session. The Senate opposition to the Wilson tariff program is dwindling and the program will be carried out there as well as in the House.

"Mr. Underwood had the House pass a resolution providing for House tariff sessions beginning Tuesday, from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m., with five days devoted to general debate, followed by consideration of the bill, item by item, under a five-minute debate rule.

"He estimates that it will not take more than two weeks to pass the bill through the House."

Little Speculation in London.

It is not alone in this country that the speculative spirit is in abeyance. London brokers are complaining about the lack of outside interest in the market as much as their "cousins" in New York. W. R. Lawson, financial correspondent in London for Hearst newspapers, writes:

"Various causes have combined to cheer up our stock markets, but they affect only prices. The growing optimism has attracted little public business, and there are so many new homes hanging over the markets and so few investors about that professional dealers have to trade with each other.

"But all are confident that the worst period has passed and the public is bound to come in soon."

London Copper Quotations.

The London copper warrants market opened quiet with spot at £67 18s 9d, and futures at £68 3s 9d, both unchanged.

All the large producers and selling agencies are standing firm for 15¾ cents a pound for electrolytic. It is said that any business under that figure has been for second hands and in small lots. One of the largest sellers is sold up to July 1, and most other interests are booked into June. The present demand for consumption is small, but it is believed that manufacturers in both this country and Europe have need for a deal of May and June metal which has not been bought.

Financial News in Brief.

For the twelve months ending with February the net earnings of the Federal Light and Traction Company amounted to $940,579, an increase of $151,699.

Pig iron prices are expected to improve as more demand for the product is reported.

It is understood that Lee, Higginson & Co. and some other bankers have agreed to underwrite the preferred stock to be issued by the International Cotton Mills Corporation in its refinancing. It is proposed to issue $4,000,000 five-year 6 per cent. notes, $3,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and an equal amount of common; also $1,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred on the J. Spencer Turner & Co.

During March, the operating income of Lehigh Valley decreased $435,899. For the nine months ending with March there was an increase of $668,862.

Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee figure that the government is going to raise $70,125,000 a year by the income tax. They also estimate that under the new tariff bill $1,000,000 worth of imports would pay $266,701,000 in duties at an average ad valorem rate of 29.60 per cent. Thus the new bill would raise $37,396,000 more than the present law.

The Kennecott copper mines in Alaska, owned by the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate, has declared a $1,000,000 dividend, making $4,000,000 paid in dividends during the last two years.

American Typefounders Company stockholders voted at a special meeting today to increase the preferred stock from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000, making the total authorized capitalization $7,000,000.

BLACK FOXES

United States Consul Wesley Frost, Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, reports as follows:

"A phenomenal expansion is taking place in the Black Fox industry on Prince Edward Island. Although a report upon this subject was published in the United States Consular Reports for March 31, 1911, the rapid development since that time has been so rapid and so important that an entirely fresh treatment of the subject is called for.

The ranch of the Massachusetts Silver Black Fox Company will be situated near Charlottetown, and will consist of 75 pairs of selected, pedigreed, and best bred Silver Black Foxes, for which we have signed agreements.

Ranches on this Island have been known to sell as high as from 50% to 100% this year, and stockholders refuse to part with their holdings at double the original cost.

Prices on Black Foxes are steadily increasing. The business is secure, as the breeders will be unable to supply the demands for years to come.

The Massachusetts Silver Black Fox Company are offering a limited amount of their stock at par, $100.00 a share. As most all companies heretofore formed have been oversubscribed, those desiring to become interested in our company should subscribe at once. Taking into consideration the success of others engaged in the business, the stock in the Massachusetts Silver Black Fox Company should be worth 10% per value in one year. 25% of amount subscribed for must accompany the application, and the balance on or before August 1, 1913. Write, telephone or call at our office for prospectus, which contains information from reliable sources.

COTTON MILL WORKERS FACE CUT IN WAGES

Edwin Farnham Greene, treasurer of the Pacific Mills of Lawrence, and president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, said at the opening of the annual convention of the association in Huntington Hall today that the only chance for the cotton industry to meet foreign competition was by a reduction in the wages of the operatives. President Greene declared that the industry is facing a crisis as a result of the tariff legislation at Washington.

President Greene said:

No Threat, He Says.

"If the tariff is reduced to the point that goods can be imported into this country below the cost of manufacturing, either the raw material must be purchased for less, wages reduced or capital go without remuneration, assuming that the mills are now economically and efficiently operated, and the intense domestic competition of years has guaranteed this. The price of cotton is dependent on the law of demand and supply and is beyond our control.

"In spite of all legislation, capital will not continue in a business which does not give some return. The only chance therefore to meet foreign competition is production in wages, which no one wishes to see. Otherwise, assuming that afford it and the mills do not wish to do it.

"I wish it distinctly understood that I am not making any threat that wages will be reduced, but I am sure that manufacturers will resort to this only at the very last. No one denies that the textile industry is a very vital part of the business of this country and any injury to the industry cannot but help affecting the welfare of the whole country.

May Have Changes.

The industry as a whole is facing this crisis. Some of the manufacturers making coarse goods may feel that because of the fact that a certain small percentage of the coarse goods made in this country is exported that they are free from tariff disturbances.

"This is not true, for if the fine mills are forced off of the finer grades of goods they must necessarily look for other outlets, and inevitably the industry as a whole will suffer. If any certainly part suffers. It should therefore be apparent to all that this is the time to get together and to work for our common interest.

"If anyone from the Attorney-General's office is interested in ascertaining whether a trust or any working agreement exists among the cotton mills, let him come to some one of our meetings where we are trying to secure united action on some definite point.

"There is probably in this country no industry which suffers more intense competition or a stronger feeling of independence on the part of the individual manufacturers, and it is to be hoped that in meeting this coming crisis we will all work in closer harmony so that the enormous advantages of the cotton mills to this country can become widely known to the end that our home industry may be preserved on a stable and sound basis.

Change is Disturbing.

"The most important event to us during the past few months has been the change in the administration with the complete control of Congress passing to the Democratic party. This does not necessarily mean poor business for us nor for the country at large, but such a radical change is always disturbing, and particularly so when the successful party has been advocating radical changes in the federal statutes.

"Whether or not whether Democrats or Republicans, feel that the Democratic Party has at the present time the opportunity of years to so shape legislation that the business of the country, which after all is the basis of its prosperity, will not be seriously disturbed. In fact, it will only be natural if those who are now in power are more conservative in their plans with the broader knowledge and larger experience which actual contact with these problems brings. Moreover, the dominant party is likely to be the conservative party through the full sense of the responsibility of the nation's progress."

Foss Gives Welcome.

The convention opened with an address by President Maclaurin of Technology. Lieutenant-Governor Foss represented Governor Foss and welcomed the delegates on behalf of the State. The response was made by Frederick B. Macy of New Bedford. George W. Nerville, president of the New York Cotton Exchange, spoke on "Spinning Values of Different Grades of Cotton."

The afternoon speakers were David R. Coker of South Carolina and Fred'k Bentley Wallace, Walter R. Lewis, Oscar Klaus of Atlanta and Arno Schmidt of Manchester, England.

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, APRIL 23, 1913.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND, DAILY AND SUNDAY

A New Emphasis for an "Ample Navy"

The public expression of high feeling in Japan against the California Land Law should not be lost upon the Administration and the House of Representatives.

It points the way to a public duty outlined by the national platform of the majority party and emphasized by the commen sense of the nation.

If there had been held on the Common a meeting of twenty thousand Americans, breathing such sentiments of violent hostility toward Japan, or England, or Germany as the Tokio meeting recorded against the United States, Diet, Reichstag and Parliament would have been ready to answer promptly any proposition for an increase in the navy of their countries.

It is not likely that we shall have war with Japan over the present controversy. But it should be plainly evident that war with Japan is possible now or at some other time. Any war that comes to this country is most likely to come from the Orient. President Wilson must now be impressed with that fact. The House of Representatives must recognize it at last.

The probability of that war is immensely enhanced by the knowledge of Japan and other nations that our country is not provided with the "Ample Navy" which the Democratic platform urged and which the common sense of the country demands.

An unprotected country is an open invitation to the armed assault of any nation that has a real or imaginary grievance against that country.

If the United States had today the second navy in the world, which we are rich enough to have, the Japanese populace would not be demanding war in Tokio, and the English government would not be pressing us on the tolls of our Panama Canal.

It is a plain, startling fact that our great, rich country has not a navy ample for the protection of both its ocean coasts. Our navy is large enough to protect the Eastern seaboard, but what have we for the Pacific slope? Perhaps Japan has asked and answered that question to its own satisfaction.

Mr. Roosevelt told Congress in 1907 that the sooner our country realized its duty to protect the Pacific Coast with an ample navy the sooner would our country be great and safe. That warning is even more true and timely today.

The time will come when those men in the House of Representatives and elsewhere who refused to strengthen our national defenses will be ashamed and afraid of the record they made with their votes. It is a fool's paradise to imagine we are safe because we are isolated, and a foolish policy to wait to enlarge our navy until we are invaded and an enemy's fleet is at our gates. The whole sentiment of the country is opposed to such folly.

This great government is under sacred obligation to protect every State and every citizen whose rights may be invaded.

Nor have we, who do not know, any right to criticise California, that does know her own racial and social and political dangers. We people of the East and of New England did not protest negro slavery while we ourselves were importing slaves in our own ships for sale. But when the ownership of slaves was transferred to the South we arose in our righteous wrath and abolished human slavery from the Republic.

The interests and the vital issues of California are entitled to the respect and the protection of a government of which it is a loyal part.

Unfortunately, the long-desired day of disarmament and universal peace has not yet dawned upon the earth.

Until it does come the nations of the earth will build their navies and preserve peace by the power of their navies. No nation on earth is better able to build battleships for defense than our nation!

Let us do it now while we are tranquil and able, and so keep peace with Japan and all the world.

How to Learn French--

Or Any Language. Just Listen and Talk

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner.

One of our young readers, abroad in France, writes us for advice on how to learn the French language easily. The advice is given here, and we hope that it will prove useful to him.

Remember that the big thing in this world is to take advantage of OPPORTUNITY.

You cannot blame a boy for not learning when he hasn't the chance. But when OPPORTUNITY comes, pity the boy or the man who does not take it.

You might walk all through Africa, for months at a time, without seeing a lion. But if you did see one and didn't take the OPPORTUNITY to shoot it you would feel foolish and silly afterward.

To learn a foreign language is more important than to shoot a lion. And a boy who can learn has an opportunity that many boys and men would give anything to get.

Don't neglect it. Make it your business to listen to French, TO UNDERSTAND IT AND TO TALK IT.

Ask your companion to say everything to you in French first and repeat it in English only when you do not understand.

Remember that we learn languages THROUGH THE EAR.

Reading and studying grammar has very little to do with it.

A child four or five years old speaks its mother's language well —although it has never read a word. It has learned everything through the ear, and in that way you can learn French or another language if you will.

Listen and talk constantly.

Try to get French thoroughly into your head. You will not forgive yourself if you do not do it. Try to read some French books, and, above all, TALK AND LISTEN.

College Trained Cooks Are Skilled Workers

Therefore, Do Not Complain When They Ask for Modern Tools

By DOROTHY DIX

AMONG the many things that Kansas does well is to teach aspiring girls how to become blue ribbon cooks. Recently a Kansas woman engaged one of the graduates of the domestic science course to do culinary stunts in her kitchen, and thereby congratulated herself too soon.

For said the new cook:

"I can't make pastry without a marble slab.

"I must have a spatula.

"Also an oven thermometer, some good scales, a bread mixer, rotary cream whip, a glass rolling pin and an egg separator."

The graduate is now looking for another situation.

The story is now making the rounds of the funny columns of the newspapers, and is supposed to be side-splittingly humorous.

But why? Where does the joke come in? Why is it to laugh?

The expert cook was simply demanding the tools of her trade, the tools she must have if she did good work. Nobody would see anything amusing in a carpenter demanding a hammer, and a saw, and a plane and rule if he were starting to build a house. Nobody would laugh if a plumber asked for soldering iron and a wrench when he went to fix a pipe. Nobody smiles if a painter calls for various sizes and kinds of brushes when he fares forth to paint a barn.

No One Will Now Deny That Cooking Is a Fine Art

Why then is it so ridiculous for a cook to demand the proper instruments with which to execute her art? Certainly no one will deny that cooking is a fine art, and an exact science, to boot, and the reason we have so much bad cooking is because the average cook is forced to work without the proper tools. She is in a fix that a carpenter would be in if he hammered in his nails with a brick, and whittled off the end of a board with his jack-knife, or the plumber who had to cut his pipe in two with a pair of scissors, or of the painter who daubed on his paint with a rag.

The cooking school graduates' demands seem laughably absurd to the average reader, yet a dispassionate consideration of them will show they are absolute necessities to turning out good work. Why are millions of pounds of meat sent to the table burnt to a cinder, or else too raw to eat? Simply because the cook had no even thermometer, or didn't know how to use one, and so had no way of knowing whether she was undercooking or overcooking her roast.

There's not one kitchen in fifty that has got a good pair of scales it in; yet by weighing her purchases is the only way that the housewife can keep tab on the tradesman with whom she deals and find out whether she is being cheated or not. Moreover, the recipe for every cake, and pie, and pudding is a nicely balanced chemical formula where the result depends upon the proportions being kept accurate. To do this a good pair of scales is indispensable, and where one is accurately used the way the baking turns out is not a matter of luck. It's predestined success.

Consideration Shows the Graduates' Demands Reasonable

As for the other utensils demanded by the scientific cook they are mere labor saving devices that enable her to do swiftly and easily tasks that would otherwise be tedious and tiresome.

That we should find anything to laugh about in the cook wanting her proper tools merely shows that we are ignorant, blundering fools, still sunk fathoms deep in the slough of ancient superstitions that make us think that anything is good enough for a woman to work with, and that it doesn't make any difference about saving time or labor. For there is nothing so cheap as women—especially wives. When he wears one out, a man can always get another for the asking.

The Kansas woman was horrified at the thought of installing a few modern labor saving devices in her kitchen that would enable the work to be scientifically done, instead of in a hit-or-miss way. Her husband would doubtless have thrown a fit had she presented to him the list of tools that the new cook wanted.

Yet you may be very sure that that same man has the latest model of self binders and reapers and plows on his place if he's a farmer; or if he is a banker that he has patent adding machines; or if he is a merchant that he has installed the swiftest and most perfect automatic bundle carriers on the market, or if he is a manufacturer that he has the finest high geared machinery that money will buy. He doesn't let his employes bungle along with out-of-date tools.

The criticism is frequently made that women show their lack of intelligence and executive ability by the fact that there has been less improvement in the domestic art than any other, and that while men have progressed from ploughing with a crooked stick of wood to the automobile plough, women are practically keeping house just like their grandmothers did a century ago.

It is true that the woman's kitchen hasn't kept pace with the man's factory, and that women still use archaic methods and tools in their work, but it is to be remembered that it is man who carries the purse, and that when any labor saving device was to be bought he bought it for himself, and not for his wife.

If men had to do the cooking, and washing, and sewing, themselves, there would be a fireless cooker, and a washing machine, and electric irons, and a motor on the sewing machine in every house in the land. But women haven't the money to buy these things themselves, and when they ask their husbands for them, the husbands reply that their mothers didn't need any such contrivances, and that they don't believe in newfangled ideas, anyway.

The advent of the college bred cook with her demand for the proper tools of her trade marks the beginning of a new era in domestic life. It takes housework out of the despised class of menial labor and makes of it a fine art, and it shows how pitiful has been the waste of woman's toil through all the years because she lacked the conveniences that would have lightened her labor.

Day Near When Every Woman Will Be Modern Housekeeper

Those who wish to laugh at the scientific cook's demand for the proper instruments for her art had better laugh quickly, for the day is almost upon us when every woman will see that her kitchen is as thoroughly equipped for efficient work as her husband's store or factory is. And when a woman won't have to work, from sun to sun, but by the aid of vacuum cleaners, and electric ranges, and silver polishers, and so on, she can do the labor for her family and still have time to belong to Browning circles, and attend dancing classes for exercise.

American Genius Has Given the World Its Greatest Wonder

The Panama Canal Is the Crowning Achievement of Human Mechanical Power—For the First Time Man Has Made Himself a Geological Agent

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

IN antiquity it was said that there were seven wonders of the world, headed by the great Pyramids of Egypt.

In the Middle Ages the list of world's wonders was changed throughout, and then it started with the Coliseum of Rome.

Today, if we should revise the list once more, there can be no doubt as to what would stand at the head—it would be the Panama Canal.

In order to be accepted as a "wonder" any work of man must make a particular kind of appeal to the imagination. That it excites admiration is not enough; it must also awaken the feeling that in creating it man has taken a step forward, beyond the line of his previous achievements.

Gods Defied by Changing Their Arrangement of Earth's Surface

Regarded in this way the Panama Canal is without a rival, as the intense interest shown by the entire world in its approaching completion proves.

For the first time in his history man has directly joined two oceans, the greatest on the globe. For the first time he has cut two continents asunder. Thus he has made himself, in effect, A GEOLOGICAL AGENT. In their appeal to the imagination all his former works sink into relative insignificance.

If some new Herodotus were to go wandering through our modern world in seach of marvels he would, on arriving at Panama, find no words strong enough to express his amazement. He would exclaim that the American had defied the gods by changing their arrangement of the face of the earth!

In order to understand what the Panama Canal means as an example of human interference with geography, we must look at what nature had done on the same spot. For this purpose take a map showing the Central American and West Indian region, with indications of the depth of water on both sides, and a raised chart, like Mr. Gray's, exhibiting a bird's-eye view of the line of the canal across the isthmus.

Thus you will perceive that, in some long past period, broad, though very irregular, necks of land probably connected the two islands to the mainland, both north and south. The Gulf of Mexico was once nearly isolated, like a great lake, and there were other large lakes where the Caribbean Sea now rolls its waters.

Afterwards there was a sinking, separating the islands from the continental shore, and leaving only the narrow isthmus to connect North and South America.

For ages this condition has persisted, and it is doubtful if the two continents have ever been completely cut apart, at least since the cretaceous age. More likely the rocky spine of the isthmus has always connected them, whatever other changes may have occurred.

Two Oceans Separated by Nature, Are United by Man

If this be so, it is evident that, in making the Panama Canal, we have interfered with the original arrangement of Nature. We have taken two oceans which she had separated and united them by a waterway. That waterway, to be sure, is a mere thread, and we have had to elevate much of it above sea level (which Nature could not have done), but it serves our purpose, and does it without upsetting any of Nature's broader designs. If the whole isthmus were swept away the Gulf Stream would probably be diverted, and a climatic catastrophe might fall upon Northwestern Europe, if not upon North America itself.

It will be just four hundred years next September since Balboa, standing silent upon his "peak in Darien," saw the glitter of the Pacific and thus knew that there was another great ocean west of America.

He, and others after him, looked for a natural waterway between those oceans, but the possibility of making such a way could not have occurred to him, and he certainly had no foresight of the mighty nation that was to arise in the north, composed of a different race from his, and destined, in so short a time, to link the ocean behind him with that which he saw far ahead.

Age of Discovery of New Habitable Lands Is Now Past

The age of discovery of new habitable lands, capable of becoming the seats of new empires, is past. We now know the whole earth, as Nature made it, having seen even its poles, through the eyes of brave explorers. It only remains for us to complete its conquest by making it fitter for our habitation.

The Panama Canal is the first gigantic stride taken in this new conquest. American genius and enterprise have achieved it unaided. We have paid its cost in lives and treasure; let him beware who would deprive us of the fruit of our toil and sacrifice.

A Mistake

The disapproval by Governor Foss of the bill providing that no butter shall be sold in Massachusetts containing more than 16 per cent. water is a mistake, and the Legislature ought to correct it by passing the measure over his veto.

The federal law on the subject limits water in butter to the same percentage. Massachusetts food laws of all kinds should be brought up to the national standard, and public sentiment is fast demanding that they be radically improved to that end. We are behind the United States, we are behind many other States in this matter. Attempts to protect the consumer should be encouraged, not assaulted.

The Governor's plea that the federal statutes attend to the butter case is not valid, for they do not affect butter made in Massachusetts or that brought in here to be worked over and watered. Nor are his other reasons for the veto much more convincing.
